Sister John Agnes swings a mean bat at the St. Catherine Laboure School's first field day. Matthew Brand does the catching honors. The field day was held in conjunction with last day of school festivities and marked a swing into summer which arrived officially this morning at 9:55 a. m. For further proof that summer has finally arrived, Kingston Point Beach opened today at 10:30 a. m. While coolish weather may dampen spirits of persons determined to take a first day dip never fear, the season has just begun. (Freeman Photo by Kruh)

Damage From Twisters May Exceed $1 Million

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Reports of the amount of damage caused by twin tornadoes and violent thunderstorms Friday that affected parts of three Western New York Counties were sketchy today, but one estimate put the total at well over $1 million.

The twisters touched down early Friday and cut a swath of destruction about 20 miles wide and 40 miles long through parts of Chautauqua, Cattaraugus and Allegany Counties.

The Village of Bemus Point on the shore of Lake Chautauqua was declared a disaster area by the county civil defense director, Harold W. Eckwahl.

It was reported 12 fashionable homes were flattened including one owned by State Sen. Jess J. Present. An insurance broker in the area estimated damage at about $400,000.

One Injury

Only one injury was reported. Winds, reported to have reached 85 m.h.p. at the Jamestown Airport, slammed a youngster boarding a school bus at Cone- wango against the vehicle.

Almost every house in Cone- wango, a hamlet about 20 miles northeast of Jamestown, was damaged.

The northwest and southern sections of the City of Jamestown suffered extensive damage.

A corner on the fourth floor of the Automatic Voting Machine's factory collapsed after winds peeled the roof from the building. The automatic fire sprinkler was activated and water caused heavy damage to the plant, which suspended operations. A restaurant, about one mile north of the factory, was flattened.

The storm also hit communities to the east of Jamestown, including Ellicottville, Franklinville, Little Valley and the city of Salamanca.

Power and telephone lines were downed, but in most areas service was restored before midnight Friday.

Throughout the path of the tornadoes, huge trees were felled causing heavy damage to vehicles in the streets and to houses.

The Red Cross flew a disaster specialist from Washington and those left homeless were fed and given temporary shelter.

It was the second tornado to hit Southwestern New York in the past month. On May 17 a twister ripped into Sinclairville and caused damage estimated at $300,000.

Two tornadoes in one year in New York State are rare occurrences. It's even more of a coincidence that the two New York State twisters have struck within 20 miles of each other.

There's no myth about a tornado not striking in the same place twice. In 1945, another twister hit Jamestown with damage estimated at $5 million. It is still the worst tornado recorded in the state.

Although most of the state's tornadoes have been concentrated in the western area of the state, Schenectady was hit by one in 1960, with property damages listed just below $5 million.

Most Tornado Prone

The 50 mile stretch between Jamestown and Buffalo is considered the most tornado prone area in the state. The Great Lakes are considered to be a factor in the whirlwinds, which occur only under a rare set of circumstances closely associated with thunderstorms.

Downstates have escaped the ominous twisters. Tornadoes have never been reported in New York City, Long Island or neighboring counties. But Worcester, Mass., had never reported a tornado either, until 1953 when one struck there killing 90 persons.

New York State tornadoes have been both rare and not particularly costly in terms of lives. Only 18 persons have been reported killed by the twisters. None were killed Friday and only minor injuries were reported.

10 Die in Train, Car Wreck

VIENNA, Ga. (AP)—A car carrying two women and 10 children on a sunny afternoon outing was hit broadside by an eight-car freight train at a crossing near here Friday. Ten died, including nine children.

The crowded sedan, which apparently stalled as it attempted to cross the tracks, was dragged some three-quarters of a mile before the engineer of the Southern Railway train, William A. Thompson of Valdosta, could halt the train.

Hint From Rhodesia

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP)—Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith hinted today that this breakaway British territory might declare itself a republic on Nov. 11—four years to the day since it declared its independence.

Smith addressed a news conference the day after Rhodesia small and predominantly white electorate approved referendum proposals to switch to a republic, and constitutional revisions to entrench white minority rule.

$1 Million Claim

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A woman whose son mistakenly killed by police searching for a freeway sniper June 11 filed a $1 million claim against the city Friday.

Mrs. Pearl Rania told newsmen her son, Donald Lee Oughton, 29, "always cared for the police."

Oughton, who suffered from a severe speech defect, was killed when police thought he reached for a gun. It is believed Oughton actually was reaching for his wallet in which he carried a card identifying himself and explaining he had a speech defect.

Spacecraft Launched

VANDENBERG AFB, Calif. (UPI) — The seventh spacecraft of the Interplanetary Monitoring Platform series was launched today on a cigar-shaped orbit around the earth to measure radiation between the earth and the moon and to monitor solar flares.

The satellite, designated Explorer 41 after it successfully separated from the third stage of a Delta DSZ 3-W vehicle, was launched at 1:48 a. m. PDT.

Heavy Fighting in Highlands

SAIGON (AP) — Renewed heavy fighting broke out in the central highlands, where South Vietnamese forces are facing their first real test battle against North Vietnamese army regulars, military spokesmen said today.

Sixty North Vietnamese soldiers and 31 government troops were killed in four fights Friday that swirled around the Ben Het Special Forces camp and around Dak To, 280 miles northwest of Saigon.

The biggest fight flared two miles northwest of the Green Beret camp at Ben Het, which has been under artillery siege for weeks from North Vietnamese guns firing from inside Cambodia and Laos six miles away.

North Vietnamese regulars slashed into American-led South Vietnamese civilian irregulars and killed 18 and wounded 54. Twenty-six North Vietnamese troops were reported killed.

There were no reports of any American casualties.

One of 33 Shelled

The Ben Het Special Forces camp was one of 33 allied bases and towns shelled overnight. U.S. headquarters said there were no American casualties.

North Vietnamese and South Vietnamese forces have been locked in fighting around Dak To and Ben Het since May 1. Nearly 400 South Vietnamese troops have been killed and almost 2,000 wounded. An estimated 40 Americans died defending the artillery and engineer positions in the area still controlled by U.S. units.

The south Vietnamese claim that more than 1,500 North Vietnamese soldiers have been killed.

The outcome of the first real test battle between North and South Vietnamese troops around Dak To might indicate the future outcome of a war in which fewer and fewer Americans participate. But so far, observers on the scene see the fighting as a draw.

Elsewhere, only light and scattered fighting was reported. For the second time this week North Vietnamese troops attacked a base camp of the U.S. 5th Mechanized Infantry Division southwest of the abandoned Khe Sanh combat base near the Laotian border. Twenty-five North Vietnamese soldiers and two Americans were reported killed in the fight and 15 Americans wounded.

One of the overnight shellings hit the headquarters of the U.S. Ninth Marine Regiment about 10 miles south of the demilitarized zone. Some Marines from the regiment, which is being re-deployed to Okinawa under President Nixon's 25,000-man troop withdrawal plan, were killed and wounded.

U.S. B52 bombers pounded North Vietnamese troops and staging areas two miles south of the demilitarized zone in two raids Friday night.

Meanwhile, United Press International reports in Washington that administration officials acknowledged today President Nixon may have sparked undue optimism when he said he "hoped" all American ground combat forces could be pulled out of Vietnam by the end of next year.

They emphasized the President was simply trying to make clear during his Thursday night news conference that he so, also may have given the night news conference that he was as anxious as his critics to disengage the maximum number of American forces.

They pointed out that he made no specific promises, any concessions by Hanoi and the Viet Cong. If the enemy reasserting his intention only to bring U.S. forces home as fast as he could without jeopardizing U.S. objectives in that country.

But, the history of the Vietnam conflict has demonstrated that "hopes" expressed by top American officials often become embedded in the public mind as "pledges," with disastrous political consequences at home.

The President, although he certainly did not intend to do so, also may have given the impression because they saw no need for him to indulge in the expression of vague hopes when he was asked to comment on a proposal by former Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford calling for withdrawal of 100,000 troops from Vietnam this year and all remaining ground combat forces by the end of next year.

Nixon already had embarked on a plan for carefully phased withdrawal of U.S. forces keyed to the reality of developments in Paris and on the battlefield, with the initial 25,000 coming out during the next six weeks and a decision in August on of answering pressure from his additional withdrawals.

Many Were Surprised
Many diplomatic observers were surprised when Nixon, who had previously dealt with the Vietnam issue with restraint and skill, took this way of answering pressure from his additional withdrawals.

Arrest 40 Suspects

Blast Near Wailing Wall

By United Press International

Israeli police and security forces have arrested 40 persons suspected of being involved in the planting of explosive charges near where hundreds of worshippers prayed at the Wailing Wall in Jerusalem Friday.

Jerusalem Police Chief Yithank Bareli made the disclosure today in an interview on the state radio. He declined to give further details.

Authorities said the blasts Friday from 10-pound explosive charges ripped a hole in a house, blocked a narrow alley opening onto the wall, and injured two Arabs and an Israeli soldier. Two American tourists were treated for shock.

Earlier in the day, Arab guerrillas hurled a grenade at an army truck in Gaza, but it missed the vehicle and landed in a crowd of Arabs, killing one and wounding 15 others, five seriously.

An Israeli soldier was slightly wounded by Egyptian artillery fire across the Suez Canal Friday night. An Israeli army spokesman said he was the only Israeli casualty in day-long artillery and mortar exchanges across the waterway.

In Cairo, Egyptian military sources said Israeli gunners hurled rockets and shells into Suez City and other towns on the southern end of the Canal. They described it as the heaviest bombardment along the cease-fire line in three months.

An estimated 2,000 Jews were at the Wailing Wall when the explosions went off.

"We were walking down the street when suddenly I was knocked backwards and everything went black," said Andrea Blatt of Pacific Palisades, Calif. "I grabbed for my friend (Mario Frolich, of Los Angeles) and we staggered out of the street. A policeman took us to a hospital."

The girls both in their 20s, were released after treatment for shock.

Hasidic Jews in long black coats and wide-brimmed hats were back at the wall a short time after the explosion. Israeli troops and police launched a widespread search for the terrorists in the old walled city.

captured by the Israelis in the 1967 Six-Day War.

In other Mideast developments:

—A leading right-wing Lebanese politician said Friday night that about half of the Arab guerrillas occupying south Lebanon have withdrawn. Sheikha Pierre Gemayel, leader of the pro-western Tripartite Alliance, was quoted by a Beirut newspaper as saying the withdrawal began 18 days ago.

—Israeli Defense Minister Gen. Moshe Kashfi said Friday night that Israel will have to maintain its present high level of military spending for at least the next five years to keep pace with Soviet arms shipments to its Arab neighbors. He said Israel now spends $885 million annually on arms—the equivalent of 20 per cent of the nation's gross national product.

Rocky By-Passes Montevideo Visit

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (UPI)—Threats of anti-American violence today forced Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York to forego a visit to this capital city, and meet Uruguay's leaders in the heavily guarded seaside resort of Punta Del Este.

Uruguay was the third and last nation on Rockefeller's current Latin America fact-finding tour, undertaken at the request of President Nixon.

Terrorists in Montevideo Friday set fire to the General Motors Corp. administration building, tried to burn down a U.S. cosmetics factory and attacked some 10 other businesses in protest of the Rockefeller visit.

Anti-Rockefeller and anti-U.S. signs spread throughout Montevideo and several student demonstrations were reported against the U.S. envoy's visit. Cuban and North Vietnamese flags hung from the main building at the University of the Republic.

All schools and colleges were closed by the government because of what it said was a flu epidemic. One sign hanging from in front of the national university said, however, "It's not Asian grippie (flu): it's grippie!"

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

Miss Layona Glenn has had a very long life of love and service to mankind. She was born on a plantation near Conyers, Ga., in 1866. Her father was a surgeon in the Confederate Army. Early in life Miss Glenn knew she wanted to be in the mission field and was educated to that end.

In 1894 she went to Brazil as a pioneer missionary in that country, teaching and working with the people. She taught Bible, English, geography and mathematics. She also had to be her own carpenter, plumber and electrician because of the lack of help in those fields.

In Rio de Janeiro Miss Glenn reestablished a school that had been closed because of yellow fever. Later this school became known as Bennett College, the first college for girls in Brazil. She spearheaded the founding of a new school for girls in Petropolis, Brazil, and established the Anna Gonzaga Orphanage in Brazil's Federal District. Today this institution is a noted children's home. For her 40 years of service in the education of women in that country, the Brazilian government in 1957 decorated Miss Glenn with its highest civilian honor, the medal of Honor of the National Order of the Southern Cross.

Miss Glenn retired from missionary work in 1934, but not to inactivity, for she continued to carry the message of missions, the Bible and Brazil throughout the United States, speaking to civic clubs and church groups. Vially active at 103, Miss Glenn continues to write a weekly column that is published in three Georgia newspapers and her first book is being published this year.

Library Board Fails to Renew Rosichan Pact

Kingston Library's Board of Trustees voted unanimously this week not to renew the contract of Richard Rosichan, director of the library since last September. The board informed Rosichan by letter that his services will be terminated as of next Sept. It gave as the reason for its action the unanimous opinion of its members that his "handling of fiscal and administrative functions of the library have not been satisfactory."

Rosichan, commenting on his dismissal, told The Freeman today he feels his ordering of the magazine, Evergreen Review, was at the crux of the board's action. The library director said he placed the magazine in the library "in line with my professional obligation to publicly provide all varieties of opinion and thought" to the public through the library's collection. When trustees received complaints this spring about the presence of the publication, Rosichan said pressure was brought by the board for its removal.

Board President Chester Baltz denies that Evergreen Review "had anything to do with the board's refusal to renew" the director's contract. He said the magazine was not dropped from the library's shelves at the time of the spring episode and that it is still available for reading now. Baltz maintains that Rosichan's contract was not renewed simply because the board found his "fiscal and administrative" procedures incompatible with the budget. He said the board's decision to give the director two months notice in advance had been an effort on the part of members to allow him full opportunity to seek other employment.

Sees 4-Power Talks As Means to an End

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (UPI)—A former special consultant to the U.S. State Department told the Bnai Zion Friday night that the four-power talks on the Middle East may prove useful but should not force a settlement on the opposing nations.

Bernard Katzen, a New York attorney and special ethnic advisor to the Republican national committee, said he was pessimistic as to the outcome of the four-power talks.

"Nonetheless, I have supported the concept of the talks conditioned upon the assumption that they will not result in any imposed solution, overt or covert, and they will lead ultimately to direct peace talks between Israel and the Arab states, Katzen said.

"Hopefully," Katzen went on, "they may test whether the Soviets have any peaceful intentions and may also prove to be useful in providing movement and initiative toward the ultimate solution of the Middle East problem."

Former presidential aide Theodore Sorensen will speak today, at the 60th national convention of the fraternal Zionist organization, on Vietnam and the Middle East.

Earlier Friday, Herbert Berman, a member of the New York City board of higher education, ascribed the crisis on college campuses to two causes.

"One is the 'rule or ruin' philosophy of the small minority of militant students on campus," he said. "The other cause is the 'better red than dead' philosophy of many faculty members in dealing with the multitude of problems raised in campus confrontations."

Berman said that whether sponsored by blacks or whites, the campus power struggle "must not result in a compro-

Abernathy Jailed In Wake of Riot

CHARLESTON, S. C. (UPI)—Negro youths showered police with rocks and bottles Friday night while the Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy, vowing a new program of "militant nonviolent activity," was carried bodily to jail.

The deluge on a street in a Negro neighborhood in this historic port city injured at least five policemen and a UPI newsmen. Rocks shattered the windows of more than a dozen cars.

National guardsmen and state troopers rushed in quickly to reinforce police, who restored order within an hour without swinging a blow.

Four persons, including Abernathy and Hosea Williams, a top aide in the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), were arrested.

Abernathy and Williams were charged with inciting to riot and rioting, parading without a permit and disorderly conduct. Their attorney, F. Henderson Moore, said they would not make immediate bond.

The brief violence was the worst yet in the three-month-old strike by 450 Hospital and Nursing Home Workers Union members against medical college of South Carolina hospital and the Charleston County hospital.

Abernathy, leading an SCLC campaign for the strikers, had attempted to lead 400 Negroes on a march across town to the hospitals in violation of a city restriction against night marches.

Police chief John Conroy, whom Negro leaders have praised for his leniency with demonstrators, met the marchers about five blocks from their rallying point. He told Abernathy he had no parade permit and the march was illegal.

Abernathy turned and addressed his 400 followers:

"We are going to practice civil disobedience in Charleston as it has never been practiced before. We are going to have militant nonviolent activity that Dr. Martin Luther King and I used to talk about but never has been seen."

The man who succeeded the slain King as head of SCLC then sat down in the street. Many Negroes knelt to pray.

Conroy told the crowd through a bullhorn to disperse immediately. When there was no move to do so, he ordered officers to make arrests. Police picked up Abernathy and Williams and carried them to a patrol wagon. Four Negro youths rushed officers in an attempt to free their leaders. Two of them were arrested. The deluge of thrown objects was overturned.

Panel Backs Revision Of Marijuana Statutes

NEW YORK (UPI)—A panel composed of three doctors, a federal narcotics official, a student leader and a lawyer, agreed Friday that strict laws concerning the use of marijuana should be revised.

The panel met at the nurses' residence of Mount Sinai Hospital at the invitation of Congressman Edward I. Koch of Manhattan, who has sponsored a bill that would set up a presidential commission to make a "definitive study" of marijuana and its effects.

Koch, who says he favors a reduction of criminal penalties for possession of marijuana but not necessarily legalization of it, said he learned this week from house judiciary committee chairman Emanuel Celler, D-Brooklyn, that his bill will be referred to a subcommittee and "seriously considered in this session of Congress."

Dr. Joel Fort, professor of the school of social welfare at the University of California in Berkeley, told the audience of 10 that between 1 and 15 million Americans in all-age and socioeconomic groups now use marijuana. Asserting that calls for more research were "basically irrelevant," Fort said studies indicated that marijuana is no more harmful to the average person than other drugs such as sleeping pills.

Fort advocated legalization and "drastic reform" of present laws.

Dr. Henry Brill, director of Pilgrim State Hospital in West Brentwood, said he and many professionals favor a "careful review" of the laws. Another panelist, Dr. Sidney Cohen, director of the division of narcotics addiction and drug abuse of the National Institute of Mental Health, said marijuana had no pharmacological qualities that lead to crime. He said present laws punishing possession of marijuana are "excessive, draconian and are doing more harm than good."

Frederick M. Garfield, assistant director for science and education in the Bureau of Narcotics of the Department of Justice, said he believed the Nixon administration would submit an omnibus bill relating to drug laws in the near future.

Garfield said after the panel discussion that he favored lighter penalties for drug possession and use than for sale of drugs.

The only under-30 member of the panel, Bardwell Grosse, director of the National Student Association's drug studies program, said that by classifying non-addictive marijuana with heroin, the older generation was not convincing the country's youth that marijuana is dangerous.

Instead, Grosse said "the kids won't listen to you about dangers of other drugs" because the adults' credibility on marijuana is questioned.

"What they (the older panelists) are saying is that the only thing harmful with marijuana is that you can be put in jail," Grosse said.

(Reynolds Photo)

The Rev. Alvin Messersmith officiated at the double ring ceremony of Miss Linda Lou Tobiasen, West Camp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Tobiasen, Rotterdam, and Norman Lane Foust Jr., 17 Barclay Street, Saugerties, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Foust, East Brady, Pa., on Sunday, June 8, at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, West Camp.

Mrs. Stella Potts, organist, accompanied Ernest Tobiasen, father of the bride; and Charles Tobiasen, uncle of the bride, who sang traditional wedding selections. Yellow chrysanthemums decorated the altar and white satin bows marked the family pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a silk organza and Chantilly lace over silk taffeta gown, fashioned with a fitted basque bodice, scalloped neckline trimmed with sequins, and long organza sleeves accented with lace appliques. A cascade of lace, edged with organza ruffles, was featured down the front of the full skirt. The shoulder-cathedral train of organza, trimmed with bands of lace, was detachable. Her four tier bouffant veil of French illusion was caught to a cluster of lace and tulle with crystals. She carried a cascade of white roses.

Miss Caroline Miller of Kingston, served as maid of honor. She wore a pink floor-length chiffon over taffeta gown styled with a fitted empire bodice which was accented with daisies, a

Ninth Annual 'Acres of Antiques'

The tiny rural hamlet of Stanfordville in Dutchess County is getting ready for its ninth annual invasion of avid antique collectors. This will take place on Saturday, June 28; in the event of rain, one week later.

"Acres of Antiques," launched by the Stanford Lions Club nine years ago as a modest flea market, has grown to be the largest and most intriguing Antiques Fair in the County. Probably the most important factor in its growth has been the effort to select top dealers and enlist their interest in exhibiting really first class antiques. This has resulted in an astounding patronage by visitors from Connecticut, Massachusetts and New Jersey, as well as the entire Hudson Valley. The Fair is held in the little town's beautiful Recreation Park surrounded by the foothills of the Berkshires. The name refers to five acres of green exhibit area and some ten acres for free parking. There are modern rest room facilities, as well as handsome trees and a carefully engineered swimming pool rather than the inevitable concrete pool.

Refreshments, including home made items, are available all day. Admission is by a donation to the Lions Civic Projects Fund.

Stanfordville is on Route 62 between Routes 44 and 199 just east of the Taconic Parkway.

Named to Dean's List

Fred Serravallo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Serravallo of 136 Elm Street, Saugerties, has been named to the dean's list at Cortland State University where he is a junior majoring in physical education.

Urban Aid Politics

Mayors of the larger American cities stressed that they are not getting enough federal aid primarily because the national administration is headed by Republican Richard M. Nixon. Mayor Jerome P. Cavanaugh of Detroit quoted Vice President Agnew as writing in a magazine article that most governors are Republican, most mayors are Democratic, and as a result the federal administration is cooperating mainly with the states.

These political overtones were heard at the U.S. Conference of Mayors in Pittsburgh last weekend. Mayor Kevin H. White of Boston suggested that the federal government should fund aid through the states, "guaranteeing 40 per cent of funds to the cities." Four-term Mayor Arthur Naftalin of Minneapolis said his city is not able to raise the resources it needs and the federal government is in "substantial retreat."

Naftalin put his finger on the real difficulty. The federal government has not shown any enthusiasm about rescuing the cities from their financial predicament. Since appointing former Michigan Governor George Romney to head the Department of Housing and Urban Development, and appointing Daniel Moynihan his special adviser on urban affairs, President Nixon has not sought congressional approval for massive aid to cities. He is concentrating on hunger and crime and is letting the cities work out their own financial problems.

The fact is, the cities did not do any better under Democratic administrations. They have been urging more urban aid for years. Their chief demand, a share in federal revenues without strings, depends as much on Congress as the White House, and neither has given more than lip service to the idea. They need to keep down government spending, too, and they've seen a lot of federal money go down city drains through political or leftist maneuvering.

Living on Welfare

Welfare recipients are not content with survival benefits. They want to enjoy the same food, clothing, housing and furniture that other people do. Through hundreds of representatives, who are welfare recipients themselves, they are making their wants known to official Washington, including sympathetic members of Congress.

"Look around, you'll see a roomful of healthy fat ladies, but they feel bad," Michigan welfare rights chairman Kate Harris told a people's hearing at the Health, Education and Welfare Department. "They have to eat the wrong foods, some days they don't eat, and when they do eat, they overeat. Here we are human beings and we have to live like the lowest creatures on earth. We don't have enough of anything."

To non-welfare recipients, the first thing we think about is what are these healthy ladies, as they call themselves, doing asking for handouts when they could get what they want by working for it. They want a guaranteed annual income of $5,500 for families of four to buy the good things their welfare checks don't give them. But they don't think that thousands of families of four in this country with a working head of the family do not earn that much. Yet they want it for nothing.

Welfare has become something many people believe is a right. They don't realize it is something given by a generous government to tide over unfortunates, not to make a way of life for them.

Pompidou Election

American remembrance of Georges Pompidou when he was Premier of France is not altogether happy. We can look forward to easier relations with France since Pompidou's election as President only if we recall that he was carrying out the policies of a very determined Charles de Gaulle.

For the immediate present, we cannot expect any definite changes that affect Franco-American relations. Pompidou carried out France's withdrawal from NATO, he cannot be expected to restore it so soon. He shut the door to British membership in the Common Market and already he has Britain's petition for membership. He will have a parliamentary majority of Gaullists and he will have to tread softly in making changes.

Pompidou wants first of all, to rescue France from her domestic troubles. This effort should dictate changes that will in time bring him closer to his long time allies, the United States and Britain. He might even veer toward a united Europe. He owes the Communists nothing and need not embrace them, although they supposedly boycotted the election to show their muscle. It was not a credible performance.

Presumably, Pompidou assumes power free to make his own record. For France's own sake, he will need to move closer to the United States. There is good reason to believe that his 7-year rule will not be as distant to America as de Gaulle's last 11 years.

"Don't Call Us, We'll Call You!"

Henry J. Taylor Says

Budapest's Secret Executions

VIENNA — Like Red Hungary's sugary appeal for American tourists — this journalist, albeit, excluded by an official blacklist — the recent visit here of Hungarian Minister-President Jeno Fock was a pitch for the West's hard currencies. The Austrian shilling is now backed by more than a hundred per cent in gold.

Fock probed the Austrian government with his thoughts and speeches like a crooked gambler fanning a deck of cards. As Reds are doing in our country, it was all dedicated to contaminating the flow of public opinion.

But Fock's visit carried the aroma of barbed wire, of the sentry dogs and secret police, and of the buried treasures practiced by his Red regime less than 60 miles away. He was lucky to get out of Austria with his skin intact, for pitiable and knowing Budapest-persecuted Hungarian refugees are everywhere in Vienna. And their relatives left behind sleep each night with one eye open, waiting for the knock.

At Budapest's Central prison the executions occur at 5 o'clock in the morning. Escaped Hungarians will tell you: "You never know the day. You only know the hour." No Hungarian or seized foreigner is ever warned in advance that he or she is to be liquidated.

This is likewise confirmed for Red Czechoslovakia by Czech-born American citizen Vladimir Kazan-Komarek, long held in prison in Prague, and whose brother Miroslav served 10 years in jail merely because he knew him.

Among Viennese, probably the most famous of Budapest's secret executions, which even Fock did not have the gall to deny, were those of 57 Hungarian youths at the university, 46 boys and 11 girls. Held incommunicado, all were hanged in the Central Prison courtyard, each girl on the day she reached her 18th birthday, each boy when he reached his 21st.

Fock's "bridge-building" foray here, a transparent fraud from which we should draw our own lesson in the United States, was a total failure. The Austrian people know that the Red leopard has not changed its spots.

Located on the Hungarian-Czechoslovakian frontiers, Austria looks upon some West-East trade as an economic essential. But it astounds the Viennese that we in far-off America, fighting communism in Vietnam and elsewhere, should fall into this trap. Trade gives first aid. When we help a Communist form of government, we undermine the security of the United States.

The chief of our State Department security forces, in turn, charged with protecting our embassies and consulates abroad, tells me here that his group finds our Budapest and Prague embassies the most heavily "bugged," infiltrated and molested of any we maintain behind the Iron Curtain. For example, when a microphone was unearthed recently in the ambassador's office and three more in his Budapest residence, the embassy did not even protest it, this was so usual.

All U.S. embassies by necessity employ a country's nationals as subordinate clerks, translators, chauffeurs, etc. In Hungary, we are required to have these assigned to us only by the Communist Party employment headquarters.

Even so, the secret police constantly harass them. One after another they disappear from their U.S. embassy jobs. Recruiting their replacements is an endless and tragic embassy problem. "If you have worked for the Americans, a mark is put on you," replacements confide when embassy officials try to obtain them.

As one result, American chargee Frank Mehan reports from Budapest, our installation is hopelessly understaffed. Moreover, Mehan states, even our diplomatic pouch couriers are repeatedly delayed and harassed at the Budapest airport and our embassy's importation of needed equipment, including new cable coding machines, is made nearly impossible.

In contrast, grafting Red officials have a deal with several Austrian automobile dealers here. These dealers are bootlegging into Hungary about 200 American cars a year, brazenly listed on the bills of lading, when driven across the frontier, as "gift packages." The grafting Budapest nabobs instruct the custom guards to wink at this and let the cars pass.

Without such graft, the Communist red tape usually bogs down everything. Yet the Reds can act fast when they want to: Witness the all but instantaneous official blackball of this writer by the Hungarian embassy here literally within minutes after his passport was presented for an entrance visa.

Space Research Benefits Have 'Fall-out' Surprises

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA)

As we have found out in some major programs of the past few years, we are seriously handicapped in our attacks on riots, crime, poverty and other social ills by our ignorance as to the causes or cures. Every expert tends to have his own theory.

We now know that somehow, despite our good intentions, our foreign aid, slum clearance and Vista anti-poverty programs have, on occasion, done more harm than good.

This is not to suggest these programs should be eliminated. It is to say there must be more research, not less, so that we will know what we are doing.

A logical man will ask, "Why, then, spend so much on space? Why not divert more funds to research on crime, poverty, riots and inequality?" The answer is that both kinds of research must be done. The need for direct research is apparent. But if the history of scientific research has taught us anything, it is that you cannot predict what research will produce what results.

The research that has changed this nation most remarkably often has come from mind-challenging research in "unrelated" lines.

Research results have a way of crawling over boundaries from space to medicine to education to industry to jobs to defense against crime.

It now looks, for example, as though centrifuges developed for the production of nuclear materials may provide a breakthrough for the practical research that may lead to the cure or prevention of cancer and a variety of virus diseases.

With all of their urgent needs and their essentiality, none of our vast health, education and social welfare projects in the past four decades has stimulated the development of computer technology, advanced electronic gadgetry and instrumentation calculated to revolutionize industry, education, welfare programs, employment, minority advancement and health as a fraction as much as the space program has in the past 10 years.

It has not been simply the amount of money involved. It perhaps has something to do with the adventure of exploration, the pressure of competition with a determined nation, the problem of the relative ease of solving technical problems when they are connected with purely physical achievement such as landing on the moon, as contrasted with poverty, racial and educational problems which are bound up with a knot of subjective and highly emotional judgments.

Witness the standstill at which a program for trying out new police methods in one area of Washington, D. C., finds itself. It was intended as a scientific experiment for national study. But it has been held up for a year in part because of differences over who should control the police in this experiment.

This may make sense from a political-social standpoint. It does raise havoc with attempts to develop objective scientific techniques experimentally (which, if developed independently of local pressure, can be later adopted or rejected for political-social reasons).

Drew Pearson Says Congresswoman's College Bill Stirs Up Committee

Sino-Russian War?
On June 12, 1969 Drew Pearson, one of the few American newspapermen who have visited the Soviet-Chinese border, reported on some of the facts which could lead to war between the two giants of the communist world, China and Russia.

There has followed considerable speculation in various newspapers on the same subject. The Washington Post, among others, carried an analysis June 16 by its Far Eastern expert, Stanley Karnow, reporting that: "The experts are seriously beginning to contemplate the possibility of a large scale war between the Chinese and the Russians."

WASHINGTON — Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., the Carrie Nation of the Education and Labor Committee, had colleagues in a riotous mood as she sought committee approval of a college anti-riot bill. It would have required colleges receiving federal aid to submit a "battle plan" to stop campus disorders.

Both HEW Secretary Robert Finch and Education Commissioner James E. Allen vigorously objected to Mrs. Green's bill, warning that it might lead to increased government interference in campus life.

Mrs. Green, supported by her co-sponsor, Rep. John Erlenborn, R-Ill., shot back that 60 House members were advocating even tougher measures to restrict college aid. She refused to retreat until finally voted down by the committee.

But she had fellow Democrats on the committee biting their nails as the anti-riot legislation was fought out at a party caucus behind closed doors. At one stage Rep. Phillip Burton, D-Calif., protested:

"You are bringing this bill before the full committee when your own subcommittee hasn't even acted on it. Obviously you didn't have the votes for subcommittee approval. This is a highly unusual procedure."

"You are misrepresenting the facts," fumed the lady from Oregon. "My subcommittee did hold a hearing on the general subject matter."

She finally agreed to tone down the "battle plan" provision and delete other provisions barring aid to students if they engaged in disorders.

Gas Merger Overruled
It was obscured by the headlines over Adam Clayton Powell, but the Supreme Court simultaneously handed down a historic opinion in the El Paso Natural Gas merger case.

It slapped down El Paso for its merger with Colorado Interstate Gas, thereby bluntly reversing the Justice Department for dropping this anti-trust suit.

And though the Court didn't say a word about it, lawyers read between the lines that the slap also involved the Nixon law firm which received a total of $771,129.83 from El Paso during the years 1961-67. Two senior partners of the Nixon law firm are now all-powerful in Washington — one as President, the other as the Attorney General.

Four days after becoming Attorney General, John Mitchell permitted his department to drop the antitrust case against the El Paso merger — though Solicitor General Erwin Griswold said it was his decision.

Shortly thereafter the Supreme Court, in an unusual move, retook jurisdiction of the El Paso case.

It was William Bennett, former Public Utilities Commissioner of California, who argued the case before the Court in April as he has on three separate previous occasions, each time winning.

"I am amazed," he stated after the Court ruled this week, "that the Washington press corps is afraid to ask Nixon why he gave this great economic favor to a valuable law client. What he did was similar to what Abe Fortas was accused of doing, favoring an old law client."

Old-Fashioned Congress
Gov. Bill Guy of North Dakota, who has served as governor of that state longer than any other man in history, delivered a significant speech before the "North Dakota Boys State" the other day in which he suggested that the students of the nation stage their protests in the right place, namely at the doors of Congress.

"You are justified in seeking change," Gov. Guy told the boys of North Dakota,

"but I have seen no youthful protest over the failure of Congress to adjust itself to change."

"You need to examine that all-important cog in our democracy — the Congress of the United States . . . where democracy is thwarted by archaic rules, where powerful committee chairmen can prevent a President's proposals from even being considered, where the chairman of the Rules Committee in the House can block forever the consideration of legislation favorably passed out of any House committee."

"It must seem strange to students in this electronic era that our Congress still records its votes by tedious voice votes instead of by electronic voting machines such as the North Dakota legislature has used for decades."

"If the youth of this country really want to move our communities and our states and our nation, then the logical place to begin is with renovation of the Congress . . . I am amazed that Congress has escaped the protest of youth so long, for there is the key to the remedy of this country's grave social and economic problems."

Gov. Guy will retire after his present term and run for Congress.

Opening for Negroes

Secretary of Transportation John Volpe is making an exhaustive effort to recruit and advance Negroes in his department.

He has ordered a survey of all Negroes in the top grades who haven't been promoted for two years to find out whether they are underemployed and to boost them up the government ladder.

He has also put special emphasis on conducting talent hunts at colleges with a high Negro enrollment.

In a directive to subordinates, Volpe has declared flatly: "Before filling any supergrade position or any professional level position with a non-minority group person, the selecting official in OST (Office, Secretary of Transportation) must report on the affirmative efforts made to consider minority candidates qualified for the particular position."

Note: his has caused some whites to complain that it is discrimination in reverse.

Defeated as GOP, Lindsay Is Still in Mayoralty Race

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Though Mayor John V. Lindsay is a beaten Republican, he is far from out of it as a candidate for re-election this fall.

It is even possible to argue that he is in a better position than if he had defeated State Sen. John J. Marchi, the winning GOP nominee who topped him by just a bit more than 5,300 votes.

Two weeks before the primary, Lindsay himself wondered aloud to two reporters whether it was good bad for him to capture his own party's nomination.

He was elected in 1965 by a combination of liberal Republican and Democrat votes. In that campaign he was seldom identified as Republican, and his Conservative party opponent, writer William F. Buckley, siphoned off a big share of the basic city GOP vote.

Running for the rest of this year as the designated nominee of New York's small Liberal party, Lindsay may hereafter appeal not only to much of the same constituency which elected him before, but also to the blacks and Puerto Ricans who stayed with the Democrats in 1965.

For nearly six months, Lindsay has been muting the fact that he developed a strong following among blacks and Puerto Ricans during his first term. With obvious discomfort, he hammered away at "law and order" and fiscal soundness themes which he knew were dominant in this primary.

The device did not help him. For one thing, Marchi's stuff on law and order was sterner than the mayor's. For another, Lindsay, in this posture, evidently was not plausible to Republican voters who paint him as a "coddler" of minorities and as "permissive" toward campus violence. Thirdly, many of these same Republicans never liked him in the first place.

It was always apparent to campaign experts in New York, furthermore, that if the GOP primary vote went beyond 200,000 (of a total registration of 629,000), Lindsay's chances would diminish. The actual primary vote of 218,000 was just big enough to do him in.

The reasoning on this score was simple. Half the GOP registered vote is of Italian descent, as is Marchi. A substantial proportion of those Republicans who have been coming to the polls in recent elections have been voting, not for GOP nominees, but for rival Conservative party candidates whenever they seemed respectable alternatives.

Lindsay had to hope that the vote would be small, that he could, by a sophisticated telephone and computer operation, pinpoint his supporters and get them out, that he could in some degree "defuse" the hate his own polls showed voters had built up toward him.

Yet evidently not enough of that made itself felt to overcome Marchi's handicaps as a man with insufficient money, little public identity support.

The "law and order" mood which helped Marchi cast Lindsay into the Republican discard also worked on the Democratic side, of course, to Mario Procaccino over former Mayor Robert Wagner and Puerto Rican leader Herman Badillo.

Plainly, Procaccino's "safe streets" campaign made its dent. But it may be premature to lump his vote with Marchi's and say New York is going full speed down the same "law and order" route taken by Los Angeles and Minneapolis in their recent elections for mayor.

Procaccino's winning 252,000 votes were followed closely by Wagner's 221,000 and Badillo's 215,000. Together with a combined 80,000 for also-rans Rep. James Scheuer and writer Norman Mailer, Procaccino's opposition got 67 per cent of the 767,000 Democratic vote.

That opposition, including blacks, Puerto Ricans and at least the middle-to-upper income levels of the big Jewish vote, represents Lindsay's fall hunting ground. Although he may never regain what he lost this June as a national Republican figure.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Tell me, R. W., how long did YOU fight the Establishment before you finally gave in?"

TEEN SCENE: How to Bear Barefeet in the Park

By LEI

Once upon a time, weather permitting, everyone went pattering through the rain forests barefoot, and, weather not permitting, tied some mastodon hide around each foot with a vine. This was the start of the cobbling industry, which is now so much a part of our society that it is considered quite unusual to go barefoot, or even to wear sandals. As anyone who's tried it knows, it's not only unusual, it can be downright dangerous, since the glass industry is second only to the cobbling industry in its evidence on our streets and roadways.

However, sooner or later, almost everyone decides to kick off their hot, tight, stiff, clumping shoes and go barefoot, or at least wear a pair of sandals. The sandals are strongly recommended. It is almost impossible to go from daily shoe-wearing to barefooting in one step. Shoes may give you callouses, but not where they'll be any protection against the agonizing experience of stepping, for the first time, onto a gravel driveway or a sidewalk grating.

Not So Carefree

Sandals aren't as blissfully carefree as they look, either, particularly the types with the thongs between the toes. Later when straights ask you if they don't hurt between the toes you'll say airily, "Oh no, the skin gets tough there when you wear them." You will not add that before it gets tough it often blisters, peels, and becomes gnawingly raw. The sandal straps will feel as though they were made out of either barbed wire or sandpaper. You will learn that band-aids stick to any surface except feet. It will be awful for about 10 days, but the only way to make it is to just keep wearing the strappers and keep the raw places as clean as possible. If you're afraid of lockjaw or blood poisoning, stick to wearing jackboots.

When you can finally wear your sandals without wincing, one day you'll want to go barefoot. That first day without shoes, you'll learn more about the world under your feet than you have the rest of your life.

Cool But Cutting

The earth breathes and purrs. You can feel the movements under you even when everything is still. The sidewalk under trees is always cool, even with the sun on it. Grass is cool too, but it prickles and fights being stepped on. Asphalt is smooth, but it gets feistishly hot in the sun and sticks to the feet. Concrete stays cool, but pebbles work loose and hassle your metatarsal. Gravel feels like ground glass. Oddly, ground glass can cut a two-inch gash in your heel without hurting a bit—until you slip in the blood and twist your ankle, that is.

When you walk away from your shoes, it's smart to keep in mind that there are other hazards besides pebbles and thumbtacks. Never operate a lawnmower without solid shoes on. Avoid areas where you will be exposed to athlete's foot.

Going barefoot in the rain is delightful if you like that kind of thing. In sandals, it's tricky. When they get wet, you'll have about the traction you'd get rollerskating on a mirror. Some areas have laws against driving without shoes. Be careful about dropping things on your feet or stubbing your toes. (You can break a bone in your foot a lot more easily than you'd believe.) Be sure that any raw spots on your feet don't become infected, and make sure that your sandals fit properly to eliminate as many as possible.

And enjoy a new world through your feet. Find out what fur, carpeting, tiling, and wood really feel like. Paint your soles with water color and take your footprints. Try writing with a pencil between your toes. Tie ribbons or thongs around your bare feet and ankles.

And be kind to your shoe clerk. You'll need him in a couple of months.

Helpful Teens Produce Benefits

KINGSTON — Helpful teens are making news these days, particularly in the Fifth Ward.

The Teen Club there, sponsored by John E. Finch, has been conducting an active clean up campaign in the ward. Teen power was used recently to beautify the Albany Avenue railroad bridge near Broadway. With three gallons of paint donated by Peacock Painters' owner Gerald Schatzel, the club members made like Tom Sawyer for a thorough revamping of the former neighborhood "eyesore."

Other Projects

Another clean up project in the ward was clearing of debris from the yard of a ward member whose barn had collapsed. More helpful projects are planned for the summer months. The club meets on second and fourth Tuesdays at the Brigham School to map plans and participate in a sports program under the direction of Joseph Spada.

Word has been received from New Paltz Central School of another helpful project carried out by the younger set. A Bifan fund-raising drive at the school resulted in $62 which was sent to UNICEF for food to be used in that country.

At State Parley

Meanwhile, 11 Ulster County teens are eagerly looking forward to an exciting three day session at Cornell University where they will participate in the New York State 4-H Club Congress. They will participate in discussions concerning campus unrest, law versus justice, racism, religion, the draft and pollution.

Girls attending from Ulster of Stone Ridge and Lawrence

County will be Nancy Warren, Powell of Walkill.

High Falls; Barbara Sprague, Ellenville; Lisa Supplies, Kingston; Susan Widing, New Paltz; Judy Stokes, High Falls; Susan Eckert, Tilton; Patricia Barry, Kingston and Donna Briggs, Hurley.

Boys attending are Tom Coddington and Mark Crisman

Debbie, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Denksenohn. Travels of a different sort of Accord also has been selected to participate in Empire State at the State University of New York, Albany. Valley High School leaves June She is representing the Marbletown American Legion Post at Hurley. where she participates in the sessions which started Friday and will continue through June 27.

Coleman Goes Over Top In Memorial Efforts

KINGSTON — They did it and then some.

The John A. Coleman High School senior class met their goal of $3,000 for the Eileen Hansen Memorial Fund and went over the top by $6.

The check, cover letter and scrapbook detailing how they raised the money was sent this week to the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, Memphis, Tenn. The donation will be used in leukemia research in memory of classmate Eileen Hansen who died of the disease in March, just four days before her 18th birthday.

Goals Are High

Coleman classmates set their sights high when deciding the proper memorial for Eileen Hansen. The goal of $3,000 never seemed an impossible dream to the classmates who worked so hard to go over the top.

The main event in the fund-raising campaign was a concert by the Collarmen of Mt. St. Alphonse Seminary which packed the Coleman auditorium in April. More than 1,500 persons attended the concert, making donations beyond their ticket price and purchasing refreshments all of which went to the memorial fund.

From Many Sources

Service organizations and individuals contributed more cash for the cause. Aply on Memorial Weekend the Coleman students conducted a cannister canvass along the parade route. In all the activities, other Coleman classes cooperated in arrangements and the hard work. Leading the efforts from beginning to end were Michele Scherer, Juli Crespinio, Donna Maurer and Michele Bonville but there were no chairmen as such because everyone pitched in to insure success.

Eileen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hansen, was a resident of Red Hook and many teens from Red Hook and Rhinebeck High Schools joined in the fund raising activities.

The Motivation

The motivation behind the fitting memorial for Eileen was "We just don't want it to happen to someone else's friend." Midway through the planning for the concert the leaders decided that they just couldn't stop at $1,000 or $2,000 when a goal of $3,000 might supply the cash for a needed breakthrough in curing leukemia. The money goes to St. Jude Hospital where cautious researchers feel they may have a successful cure going. More research is needed to validate their findings.

The work of Coleman seniors in this worthy project can only indicate a bright future. They got their diplomas last night and today the world.

For College Bound Study Clues Offered

KINGSTON — For the college bound senior one week of summer can be well spent in preparation.

In cooperation with Ulster County Community College, the YMCA will again offer the course on How to Study in College from July 28 to August 2. Last year 46 students reported this course was well worth the time and money.

The course, developed by two Purdue University professors, will meet for one week only—and in the evenings so that those of you lucky enough to have jobs can take advantage of the program.

The Purdue authors say the course is not remedial and that good students often gain most from the material presented.

Professor Everett Lynch, who conducted the course last year is returning and topics included will be: How People Learn; Why We Forget; A Basic Study Formula; Techniques of Review; Themes and Reports; How to Plan Your Time; Preparing for and Taking Tests and Examinations; and What You Need to Know About Each Course and Professor.

If freshmen, sophomores and juniors were thinking about using this program to help out grade averages, forget it! The course is only open to students who have graduated from high school.

Seniors who are college bound—it may seem early, but it is suggested that they reserve a place in the class by returning the enrollment form which is available in the guidance office or at the YMCA.

Onteora Girls Get GAA, Leader Awards

BOICEVILLE — Welcome and introductions were handled by Tese Skekita as GAA president with Arlene Reffelt, Leaders Club president delivering the blessing.

Assisting with the awards presentations were Carl Brown, principal; John Stefano, vice principal and Joseph Friedel, athletic director.

Varsity awards were presented to girls who have participated in at least two interscholastic team sports and played a minimum of nine interscholastic contests. Twenty-four girls received their varsity letters.

Interscholastic program includes soccer, field hockey, basketball, volleyball, track and field and softball. The intramural program has the additional sports of spee- away, badminton and gymnastics.

Clod at Bat and an array of awards were highlights of the annual Girls Athletic Association Banquet held recently at Onteora High School.

Clod at Bat was a skit presented by JoAnn Donlon, Lynn Heidenstrom, Holly Heppner, Sally Kinns, Connie Pierpont, Kim Thayer and Carolyn Viskocil.

Twenty-one Leader Awards were presented by Carol Okoren with 45 GAA awards presented by Carol Countryman. Special awards went to Sue Tiso as Outstanding GAA member; Arlene Reffelt, Outstanding Leader; Tese Skekita and Kathy Tucker, Outstanding Girl Athletes, and Mary Ann Viskocil, physical education department trophy.

RED CROSS HONORS STUDENTS — Certificates of Appreciation were awarded at recent dinner of Ulster County Chapter of the American Red Cross to area students who helped raise $1,140 to aid Biafrans. Among those honored were (L) Madeline Howell and Colleen Boice who accepted certificate for BOCES students who made 1,000 "ditty bags" for the chapter to send to GIs in Vietnam; Nancy Rhymer and Andrew Sleight, representing Kingston High School. Harvey Wainapel and David Bagliebter, Ellenville High School students were in charge of the campaign. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Hollander, Hobbit House Winning Combination

KINGSTON — Tall, dark, and handsome — and musical — Brian Hollander will be back at the Hobbit Coffeehouse as featured performer next weekend, June 27 and 28. However, Brian and his elfin manager Richard Franklin are back at the Hobbit every weekend.

The Hobbit has become Hollander's second home, as it has for several area musicians. Whether he is on stage jamming with the featured entertainers, playing pool with Franklin on the Hobbit's famous (or infamous) warped table, or sitting in the kitchen rapping with fellow patrons over a steaming hot cider, Brian Hollander has become a symbol of what Hobbit managers Tom and Sharon Phillips envisioned when they founded the coffeehouse—a place where performers, students, and community leaders could relax, enjoy good entertainment and food, engage in lively conversation, and discover new facets of themselves, their art, and the world around them.

Contented Musician

Hollander is a contented musician when he plays at the coffeehouse, and it shows in his music. He is a dynamic performer, and some of his numbers have become legends with Hobbit patrons—"Handsome Jack" in which the vigorous picking of the big guitar wears out as many as ten picks during one rendition, or his exceptionally meaningful arrangement of "Both Sides Now," the perpetual request of Coffeehouse Manager Tom Phillips. Brian also performs a variety of his own compositions, thought provoking, humorous, and occasionally melancholy.

Rare Balance

Brian Hollander's music strikes a rare balance between energy and melody. It is influenced by country, folk, and blues, without becoming any of these. His facility with a song Phillips at the Coffeehouse—or comes from long practice and born-in talent. His rapport with his shows next weekend.

Heading Home

WOODSTOCK — Homeward bound traveler, Christina Gardner, Onteora's American Field Service student, is completing her school year in Germany and preparing for her trip home.

Now spending a short vacation in Vienna, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Gardner's daughter will shortly return to her German home in suburban Bremen for the few remaining days of school and examinations — "Arbitur Week."

Memories of her busy year will include the Rhine River, flea markets, museums, donkey power plowing fields in some areas, ice cold showers in historic Escorial and crowds kneeling as the statue of Christ passed in the Easter parade.

But most of all Chris will never forget the people — the happy, spontaneous people of Spain who love to "sing at the top of their lungs" and the warm, enduring friendships made in Germany.

Christina has met, talked with, and come to know countless German students and adults. She has helped to interview innumerable German teenagers, potential AFSers who may be selected to spend a year in this country as part of the International Scholarship Program. To point out that she has done her part toward giving others a chance to know and understand the rest of the world a little better, is not necessary.

At the close of the school year there will be a short train trip to Cologne and Brussels before the flight back to New York.

MOUNTAINS OF MAROONS — Shipping out Kingston High School yearbooks to local servicemen in Vietnam are (L-R) Vicky St. John, Gerard Spratt, Valerie Vogel and Ellen St. John. Maroons for Vietnam, a project in its second year at KHS brings a bit of the old hometown to fighting men on the front. Spratt, assisting the yearbook staffers with the packing detail, was honored in this year's Maroon with a special dedication page. Gene Loughlin is faculty advisor for both the project and the yearbook. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Friedel Named Onteora Athletic Director

By MORT LAFFIN

BOICEVILLE

Joseph Friedel, Shokan, has been appointed Athletic Director for the Onteora School System, replacing Paul Jordan, it was learned today from Superintendent of Schools Dr. Harold Snyder, Jordan, who has been with the school system for 10 years, is leaving the area to go to Vermont.

Jordan filled two positions while at Onteora, acting as Athletic Director and Chairman of the Physical Education Department.

While Friedel will be the new AD, Larry Karas, varsity baseball coach, will take over as chairman and will also replace Jordan as the head football coach, assisted by Friedel.

Friedel, a physical education teacher, has been in the Onteora School System for a year, teaching classes, coaching wrestling, and helping with football. In his new capacity, he will continue as varsity wrestling coach and will assist Karas in football.

The new director graduated from State College at Westchester, Pa., with a Bachelor of Arts degree in physical education. He took his Master's degree from New York University.

Before coming to Onteora, Friedel taught in Saverna Park, Md., 1961-62 and then at Baldwin, N. Y., from 1962-68.

Karas, highly successful baseball coach for the Indians, will now get a chance to apply his coaching talents to football, while retaining his baseball assignment. The new chairman also assists the Kingston Braves in the Rookie League. Rod Patrick, Onteora basketball coach and driving instructor, will remain as hoop mentor, but will be moved into the physical education department as a full-time instructor.

All other coaching assignments remain the same at the school.

Dr. Snyder was quite pleased with the new assignments, but expressed regret that Jordan was leaving.

"He is a good man and I regret to see him leave, after 10 years with our school. However, it is his choice and I want to wish him luck in his endeavor," said the Superintendent. "I know that I speak for the district when I say this," he went on.

Since the new budget has been passed by the voters, football is back on the scene at the Onteora campus and Dr. Snyder was quite pleased with this new development.

"We operated on an austerity budget last year and football didn't fit into it, but now that it's back, I'm very pleased. It belongs in any high school, and I'm quite sure that Larry will do the job," he said.

Dr. Snyder was also confident that the new appointees could do the job.

"We have a fine caliber of men in our athletic department and they will be able to obtain the best results, both on the field and off, from our students. I have every confidence in Joseph Friedland, Larry Karas, Rod Patrick and the rest of the staff here at Onteora and I want to wish them luck in their new assignments," concluded Dr. Snyder.

Lopez Does the Job

By United Press International

Marcelino Lopez may start a tonsilllectomy rush.

Lopez, starting his first game of the season Friday night after six relief appearances, teamed with Eddie Watt for a six-hitter as Baltimore downed Cleveland

5-1 after the Indians had snapped the Orioles' seven-game win streak in the opener with a 7-2 triumph.

Lopez credits his improved pitching with, of all things, the removal of his tonsils.

"My arm hurt me two years ago and it hasn't been right since," said Lopez, who began the season pitching for the Orioles' Rochester farm club in the International League. "Then I had my tonsils taken out and that did the trick."

Elsewhere, Washington ripped Detroit 7-2 in 10 innings, Kansas City beat Seattle 6-2 after the Pilots won the opener 5-3. Chicago belted California 9-1 after losing 2-1 in 12 innings and Oakland edged Minnesota 3-2 in 14 innings. The New York-Boston game was called in the first inning due to rain.

Red Wings on Streak, Twelfth Win in Last 14

The redhot Rochester Red Wings have accelerated their drive toward the top of the International League standings.

Running their winning streak to five and boosting their record for the last 10 days to 12 victories in 14 starts, the Red Wings whipped Toledo twice Friday night—4-2 in 11 innings and 5-4—to close within a game of the runner-up Mud Hens and to within two games of front-running Louisville.

Clutch relief pitching was the key in both Rochester victories. Al Severinsen took over in the fifth inning of the first game after Toledo had scored twice to tie the score and blanked the Mud Hens or five hits over the last 6 1/3 innings until his teammates finally got him the two winning runs in the top of the 11th.

trot at Monticello Raceway got underway Friday night to be taken in 2:07.2 by Valiant Jimmie, Donald Wiest at the reins.

Coming in second in the featured event was Seymour J. driven by Bobbe Huntress, a lady driver from Gouverneur, N. Y., part owner of her charge.

Bobbe's first appearance at the Mighty M this year was in the Matinee on Memorial Day, when she was a member of the American ladies' team competing against four competitors of the same sex from Italy. On that day, too, Bobbe brought her horse, Lone Shark, in to place, scoring important points for her side. Bobbe gave Seymour J. an excellent ride to night, and since she will be a regular competitor throughout the remainder of the Mighty M season, she can be expected to appear in the winners' circle on numerous occasions.

Friday night's daily double at the Mighty M was a 3 and 1 combination returning $21.60. The linkage was between Dwayne, Don Corneau the driver, and Harry McGee, Ken Heeneey at the reins.

Both events were paces, the track was sloppy throughout and neither horse particularly distinguished himself by capturing his particular event.

Due Dwayne, a 4-year-old son of Duane Hanover-Rebecca B by Ranger Hanover did better his official lifetime mark, previously set last year at 2:08 flat, when he cut the course in 2:07.3.

Mets Defeat Cards, 4-3

By United Press International

The New York Mets scored four runs in the first two innings Friday night then held on to eke out a 4-3 victory over Bob Gibson and the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Mets scored three runs in the first with Cleon Jones' two-run single highlighting the rally. Ken Boswell tripled home the decisive run in an inning later as Nolan Ryan, 3-0, with seventh inning relief from Tug McGraw, handed Gibson his fourth loss in 13 decisions. One of the Red Bird runs came on a homer by Gibson off McGraw in the seventh inning. Bob Tillman smacked a one-out homer in the 12th inning to give the Atlanta Braves a 4-3 victory over the San Francisco Giants after Rio Carty and Bob Aspromonte had homered in the ninth for the Braves to send the game into extra innings.

Tillman's homer came off reliever Frank Linzy who had pitched perfect ball after entering the game with one out in the ninth. Reliever Cecil Upshaw, 3-2, picked up the win. Ernie Banks drove in Paul Popovich with a run in the first inning to give Bill Hands all the support he needed as the Chicago Cubs blanked the Montreal Expos 2-0.

Banks tied DiMaggio. Banks' RBI tied him with Joe DiMaggio in 15th place on the all-time runs batted in list. The victory was Hands' sixth against six losses, and the 15th shutout by Cub pitchers this season as they broke a five game losing streak.

Gene Stone tripled and scored the winning run on a seventh inning single by Rick Joseph as the Philadelphia Phillies mipped the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-7 behind the clutch relief pitching of Billy Wilson and John Boozer.

Dodgers Win

Jim Lefebvre knocked in two runs and scored a third to pace the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 4-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds to give Don Drysdale his second straight win since Padres 6-1 and 3-1.

Willie Mays Still the Greatest

NEW YORK (UPI)—That Willie Mays' magic never wears off.

Okay, so he's 38, which is old as ballplayers go. He's sensitive enough about it sometimes that he shrugs and says, "who knows, this could be my last year?" but whether it is or not, he still packs more personal appeal than any performer in the game today.

There are some who say Willie Mays has had it—never directly to his face, of course—and some who claim the kids of this generation are out looking for other younger heroes with whom to identify.

All this may be true except for one thing. Somebody forgot to tell that fellow with the skintight baseball pants who plays center field for the San Francisco Giants.

There are younger and better players in baseball today but nobody draws the people like Willie. Not even red-hot Reggie Jackson, who got a wire from the President. Mays demonstrates that fact every day.

Willie merely sought to greet an old friend, singer Pearl Bailey, in her field box seat at Shea Stadium recently and that simple act nearly set off a stampede among a mob of youngsters who descended upon Mays like a swarm of bees upon honey the moment he bent over the rail to say hello to the entertainer. Two cops had their hands full trying to keep the kids back.

Mays Loves Kids

Mays loves kids. He worries about them, too. He sees the way some of them are behaving around the country today and it distresses him.

"Pretty bad some of them, aren't they?" a newsman said to him.

"You're a writer, you can say that. I can't," Willie said. "All I say is I wonder how some of them ever are gonna get a college education. I know one thing: my son is gonna get one no matter what. I don't care whether he becomes a ballplayer or not, but he's gonna get a college education. I never had one, but he will. That's for sure."

Mays' feeling for kids is such that he even likes to mother the young players with the Giants. He looks after them. Quietly. He doesn't want any medals for what he's doing. Willie came into the Giants clubhouse the other day with a bunch of expensive wrist watches. They were immediately admired by some of the younger players who normally couldn't afford such expensive ones.

"Anybody has a good day gets one of these from me," Mays said.

"No kidding?" inquired one of the young outfielders.

"No kidding," Willie confirmed. "I don't kid about things like that."

He gave away all the watches but that wasn't anything new with him. He has always given away things. When he was in the army he'd always give the keys to his automobile to other soldiers who didn't have a car. And anytime Willie does things like that he makes sure no one from the media is around to see or report it.

Deep Concern

He has a deep concern for others, says Clyde King, in his first season as manager of the Giants. "He's genuinely interested in other people, and I think that is what has struck me most about him since I've taken this job. He lives and dies with the other players on the club daily. I think he takes their bad days much worse than his own. When one of our players has a bad day, he worries for him. Too much sometimes, I'm not sure that's so good for him."

King says it's no trouble at all managing Mays.

"It hasn't been difficult. Not at all. He hurt his back swinging against (Bob) Gibson and he was out for a while with a cold but you have to expect things like that at 38. The fans expect him to play every day. If he played until he was 45 they'd still expect it. I wouldn't let him play every day even if he could. Every town we go into people ask 'Is Willie gonna play today?' Sometimes I have to tell them he needs a day's rest but they always come back with 'Why does it have to be in our town?' They don't really understand. Willie was a great ballplayer. I know. I pitched against him. For 38 he's still great. Not many his age can still perform on the field."

Jansen Praises Him

"Not many his age are still on the field," put in Larry Jensen, the Giants' pitching coach, who heard what King had said.

"That's absolutely right," King commented. "Willie is one of a kind. They don't make the likes of him in bunches."

Recreation Story

Editor's Note: This article is the conclusion of the stories on recreation in the three "Sister Cities," Poughkeepsie, Kingston and Newburgh. The series has run on the sports pages of the Kingston Daily Freeman during the past week. It was compiled and written by staff member Mort Laffin.

By MORT LAFFIN

KINGSTON Newburgh's Superintendent of Recreation, Harold Ochs, feels the same way towards recreation as his Poughkeepsie counterpart, but is limited in what he can do about it.

"Newburgh is making some great strides towards wholesome recreation for its citizens, but we must, of necessity, crawl before we can walk. Money is the problem, it always is, but once we get it, we try to do as much as possible," said Ochs.

In Newburgh, one finds six playgrounds with the main recreation area housed at the Delano-Hitch complex. The city has but one swimming pool, also at Delano-Hitch.

The Commission, in connection with the Conservation Department, stocks between 1,000 and 3,500 trout for fishing by residents in the Washington Lake Reservoir.

Organized baseball, what there is of it, is in the form of Mid-Hudson American Legion Rookies League. There are two teams that play at the Delano-Hitch Field. The field is cared for by the recreation department.

There is no Little League or Junior League-type teams in Newburgh. Softball fares a little better, with 10 teams in a Class B League and two six-team slow-pitch divisions. Again, the department provides some equipment and takes care of the fields.

There is Pop Warner football and soccer played in Newburgh, with only the maintenance of the playing area as the department's responsibility.

Ochs' department provides the care and maintenance of 10 city-owned tennis courts and handles the City Championship.

Newburgh has one of the largest man-made skating rinks in the state and hosts the Mid-Atlantic Skating Races and Eastern State events. It is maintained and supervised by the recreation department.

Boating facilities are provided at the Reservoir for fishing. The city doesn't charge anyone who owns a boat to keep it there, but does have a minimal charge for rent on fishing boats.

Basketball does about the best of any activity in Newburgh. The Commission runs two leagues, one for men at Newburgh Free Academy, the other for younger men at South Junior High School. Fees for maintenance, supervision, officials and equipment is paid for from the recreation budget.

Golfers play in an Industrial League that runs from 12-16 teams, staged by the City at the Newburgh Country Club. There are also recreational activity and commercial leagues. The Commission does not, however, run a tourney. This is done by the Chamber of Commerce.

Of course, Ochs is quite proud of the Senior Citizens program, and rightfully so. The City is somewhat subsidized by the State in this endeavor that provides the adults of the community with recreation such as dinners, arts and crafts, parades, dances and other servicable activities.

Ochs feels that, "Recreation is the responsibility of all, not just the department. We do our best and the citizens must do theirs. Much is accomplished with co-operation from YMCA, CYO, Jaycees and the like."

He concluded by saying that he knew there was room for improvement, especially in the areas of recreation for girls and young women.

As was pointed out in a previous article, the city of Kingston has numerous facilities for recreation, some in better condition than others. What appears to be lacking here is a comparable amount of planned activity to go along with these facilities and the population that utilizes them.

True, Murphy and his department doesn't have the amount of money to work with that Poughkeepsie, or even Newburgh does, but there is more to recreation than lining a few fields and cutting some grass.

As far as baseball is concerned, the City Baseball League operates as an independent, so for the most part does the "Kingston Braves" Rookie League team. All that is asked is some maintenance on the field at Dietz be done once in awhile. And once in awhile it gets done and once in awhile it doesn't.

The Babe Ruth and Little Leagues just receive maintenance help, is one form or another, from the recreation department, and then only when requested.

The City Softball League, Slow Pitch, is one of the largest around and the Commission furnishes balls, umpires, bases and maintenance for the 24 teams.

Tennis has come a long way in Kingston, due largely to the Kingston Tennis Association, on city-owned facilities.

Pee Wee Hockey is run at Dietz Stadium with the city supplying everything but the sticks and covers.

Basketball has a Biddy League, two summer leagues and a city-operated tournament.

There is no boating, archery or golf, and football was turned down by the Finance Committee last year, according to Murphy.

The Senior Citizen Program is a fine one and Murphy devotes quite a bit of time to it. There are many bus trips to go with the usual arts and crafts programs and four gala activities are planned every year. Unlike the other two cities, Kingston receives no state aid for this program, according to the Superintendent.

Murphy sees this program as serving the needs of the populace of Kingston, but realizes that there is more to be done.

"We need more money, it's as simple as that," he said. "We could use such things as a permanent ice rink, at least one more swimming pool and many other things."

"It's about time we thought of recreation for the masses in their leisure time, not the athlete," he concluded.

So, we have a pretty comprehensive picture as to the recreation programs of the three cities. And, what have we seen? We've seen Kingston and Newburgh outstripped in the field by Poughkeepsie, not only in funds allotted for recreation, but also in the use of facilities, amount of facilities and organized activities.

True, there are more people in Poughkeepsie and therefore a bigger program is needed, but that isn't the answer. The answer here is the ability of the "Queen City" to keep up with the times, a characteristic that doesn't appear to be in evidence in the makeup of her two "sisters."

TALL STORY — Kerr Scott (L) 10-year-old son of N. C. Governor Bob Scott, wonders how anyone can guard one of the country's top basketball prospects, 7-foot, 3-inch Tommy Burleson, 16, of Newland, N. C. The boys are attending the N. C. State University basketball clinic held annually on the State Fair grounds in Raleigh. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Jim Ryun Gets Ready, Carlos Wins 100 in 9.2

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Jim Ryun, that casual Kansan, gets his final shot at national collegiate glory today and his efforts could well bring his school its first NCAA track and field championship in nine years.

Ryun, who holds the world record in the mile, will be out to reclaim the title he won as a sophomore facing one of the fastest fields in years. He'll also go in the three-mile run. His presence in the two races gives plenty of impetus to Kansas' bid for the team title. The Jayhawks, leading with 30 points after two days of competition, have plenty of strength in other events to rate as a solid chance for the title.

Ryun, who has done the mile in 3:51.1, will be going against the likes of Frank Murphy and Marty Liquori of Villanova and Charles Labenz of Arizona State, all of whom have run the distance in under four minutes.

"Biggest threat will come from San Jose State and it promises to be another big day for John Carlos, the Olympic New Yorker who won the 100-yard dash in 9.2 Friday and then said it was just an added attraction—he really was aiming for today's 220-yard run.

"That's my event," he said of the 220.

Carlos nipped defending champion Lennox Miller of Southern California in a photo finish Friday—both men were in a golf tournament at Seattle.

Representatives of both parties reportedly have been trying to arrange a meeting that might resolve the impasse between Rozelle and Namath that led to the quarterback's retirement June 6. At that time Namath revealed he had been ordered by Rozelle to sell his interest in his East Side nightclub or face suspension.

Namath decided to fight Rozelle's "sell or be suspended" order by announcing his retirement.

Rozelle said an investigation by the league revealed that Namath's club, Bachelors III, was frequented by known gamblers, who were using the place for bookmaking purposes.

timed in 9.2. Thus, he missed his chance for the world record he said he wanted badly. Earlier in the day, he turned in a record-tying 9.1 in a semifinal heat, but he had too much team championship in nine years.

In addition to the 220, for which Carlos won the bronze medal in last summer's Olympic games, he'll be anchoring San Jose State's whirlwind 440-yard relay team in a record assault on a world record. Friday, he teamed with Sam Davis, Kirk Clayton and Ronnie Ray Smith to win their heat in the event in 38.4, only .02 of a second off the world mark held by Southern California. The Trojans also won their heat to set the stage for today's showdown.

Home runs were hit by Hobie Armstrong, Don Burhans, Dave Lowe and Dennis Klonowski. Top hitters were: Joe Edwards, Don Burhans and Greg Haase with 3 hits in one game for the Post Office.

Hercules were led by Vince Fisher, George Barnes who each stroked 3 hits in one game. Sam Perry was the only 3 hit man, for Perry's.

Dave Lowe had a home run and triple to lead Shamrock. Score by innings:

Dear Abby

Stop Lies With Trust

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(N. Y. News Synd. Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My 15-year-old daughter (I'll call her "Linda") is my problem. She is so boy-crazy she worries me half to death. All she thinks about is boys, boys, boys.

When the doorbell rings, she nearly breaks a leg running to talk to any delivery boy who happens to show up.

Linda also lies a lot. She is not allowed to go in cars with boys, so she walks to a girl friend's house and the boys pick her up there. (I learned this when I happened to glance at her diary.) When I ask Linda for the truth she tells lies to cover up for much and how can I get the truth out of her?

LINDA'S MOTHER: DEAR MOTHER: Children lie because they haven't the courage to tell the truth. Give Linda that courage by assuring her that no matter what she's done you will "understand" and forgive her. Perhaps your threats are too frightening and your punishments too severe. Give her plenty of love and expect the best, and she won't let you down. And quit "glancing" at her diary. The way to inspire confidence is to show it.

DEAR ABBY: How long does a person have to live in a place before it's "HOME"?

My husband has been married to me for 16 years, and whenever he goes to see his parents he says, "I'm going home."

Maybe I'm out of line to get so upset over this, Abby, but it just burns me up to hear him say that. Don't you think "home" is where a man's wife and children are? Or do you think maybe my husband actually still feels more at home with his mother and father than he does with me?

ALMA: DEAR ALMA: Where one has spent his earlier years is "home"—no matter how long he's been away from it. Many old-timers who have been on this side of the ocean most of their lives still refer to their native lands as "home," so don't take it personally.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from "PRAYERFULLY WAITING," who had a list of complaints against her young minister's wife.

I am also a young minister's wife, and here's where I speak up for all who feel as I do!

In the first place, if "PRAYERFULLY" would think beyond herself and the mold into which she wants to place the minister's wife, she might realize that the couple probably married before they entered seminary. The wife didn't marry a "minister," she married a man! And she probably had no idea of the pettiness she was in for.

In the second place, the man married the woman for what he was. How does "PRAYERFULLY" know that the wife is a "millstone" around her husband's neck? Perhaps he is thankful that she has interests other than the church and that their life is broader for it.

Many people forget that ministers and their wives are individuals with rights to choose their own habits, their own activities just as anyone else. Perhaps if the compassion you spoke of were practiced more often, Abby, there would be fewer men leaving the parish

We are turning today's column over to Jacoby Senior to tell the actual story about yesterday's hand. Here it is.

This hand was played in the semifinals of the 1936 Grand National. I was South at table 1 and since my team, the Four Aces, used point count I had no problem putting my partner, the late David Bruce, in seven. He played the hand against the best defense as described yesterday but it did our opponents no good. Dave was always a good guesser and he picked up the queen of spades and made the grand slam.

At the other table the late Jimmy Maier sat West. There is no telling how good Jimmy would have been if he had lived past 30. He was the toughest opponent I ever faced and a mighty good man to have on the other half of my team. The late Sherman Stearns who sat East was also one of the best.

Sherman got rid of a spade on the 4th diamond and so did Jimmy. From then on they followed suit but Jimmy played his clubs in rather peculiar fashion. He dropped the six and eight and carefully hung onto the nine.

South noticed this and knew that Jimmy was deliberately giving him the information that he held the last club and had started with three spades to his partner's four.

"Why this help?" mused South.

"Does he want me to play him for the queen of spades or doesn't he?"

South would have been well-advised to a toss coin and at least have an even chance to make his grand slam. But South had too much pride for that. He tried to outguess Jimmy, played him for the queen and went down.

Primary Night in Kingston—A Time for Reflection

THE TIME is Tuesday night at Republican Headquarters. The polls have been closed for about 15 minutes.

It's quite now. Pete Fisher, a Republican candidate for alderman is manning one phone, Ed Snyder, clerk to the legislature, is on the other.

John B. Sterely, county chairman, invites everyone out for a drink after the tallies are in. Ward Ingalsbe city chairman is in an adjoining room.

The phone rings. Fisher grabs it. Silence. "Second Ward, First District. Yeah. Yeah. Yeah."

"Call it out Pete. Call it out."

"Tyrrell, 54. . . Mayone 17. . . Bunting, 86."

"Light vote. How many enrolled in that district? 360? Nobody's voting."

The phones keep ringing. Committeemen come in with tally sheets. The room fills up. It gets smoky, hot. Fisher and Snyder call out the numbers. Tony Sinagra, a committeeman, keeps a running total.

It's 9:30. "How's it look, Tony?"

Ingalsbe comes out from the next room. "How's it look for Cliff?" Ingalsbe had endorsed Bunting over the party's unofficial nominee, Jim Tyrrell.

"Looks o.k. Bunting's up by about 25, but Downtown hasn't come in yet." Ingalsbe goes back to the other room. BY NOW, former city chairman, John Ray Mayone, is back by a hundred. He stands by himself with his tally sheet.

Fisher hollers out, "Eighth Ward, Second District. . . Tyrrell, 43. . . Mayone, 16. . . Bunting . . . 15 .

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

"Tyrrell's ahead He's in. There's only three districts to go."

"Eighth Ward, First District. . . Tyrrell, 31. . . Mayone, 20. . . Bunting, 22. . ."

Ingalsbe is asked if he will resign now that it looks certain that Tyrrell will win. "I don't know. This is too close. I want to check the vote. They made a mistake of 10 votes in one of the districts."

"Yeah, but it looks like he's in. What if he wins?"

"Sure, I'll quit. I put it on the line Friday and Saturday."

The Ninth Ward comes in. Tyrrell wins it 28-6.

Ingalsbe calls a reporter into the adjoining room. "Listen. Hold off on this will you? I'll give you a statement tomorrow. I don't know whether I'll quit or just not put my name up for reelection."

Mayone is surrounded by newsmen. "I don't know what I'm going to do in the face of this rejection. I'll let you know. I can't talk now."

The mood is somber. No cheering. No congratulations. A few words of sympathy for Mayone.

HORNS ARE heard outside. A small caravan of three or four cars pulls up. Tyrrell gets out smiling. He hands his jacket to a supporter and goes into the building.

There is a smattering of applause. He goes into the back room, shakes hands with Ingalsbe. Ingalsbe leaves.

Tyrrell attempts to make a statement in the back room. There are only a few people with him. He goes out to the front room. There is a call for attention. It is ignored. Tyrrell starts to speak. There is silence. He makes his statement. No notes, no hesitation.

The crowd moves outside. Cliff Bunting is standing on the sidewalk with his wife. He has no comment on Ingalsbe's endorsement of him. "There's an awful lot of apathy in this party."

Tyrrell comes out. His smile disappears with the name of Ingalsbe. "He's got to go. We need a new chairman."

"Are you a candidate?"

"No, but I know a lot of qualified men."

The crowd breaks up into small pockets of discussion. The candidates go their separate ways.

THERE ARE those that will tell you that Jim Tyrrell won a great victory on Tuesday night. The figures show differently. Tyrrell won with less than 14 per cent of the enrolled Republicans voting for him. More than a thousand voted against him.

That was perhaps the key to the primary and it will be the key to the election. There were two factions, pro-Tyrrell and anti-Tyrrell.

Bunting's advertisements and Ingalsbe's endorsement of Bunting were aimed not so much at what Bunting's attributes were, but at what Tyrrell's allegedly weren't. A vote for Bunting was a vote against Tyrrell.

Tyrrell, we feel, has won a hollow victory. He is left with a party with no leader. Several committee resignations are in the offing. What remains of the party is widely split. The controversial young man does not turn people on, one way or the other. In a widely publicized election, fewer than 40 per cent of the eligible electorate turned out.

Tyrrell has won a battle but the war won't be as easy. As he says, there's a hard road ahead.

Senators Hope to Limit ABM Missile Buying

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators trying for a compromise in the antiballistic missile fight hope to strictly limit the number of Safeguard missiles the Pentagon can buy in the coming year.

This is in addition to their primary goal of prohibiting deployment of any ABMs at the two initial Safeguard sites in Montana and North Dakota until Congress later gives the go-ahead, sources said.

In addition, the sources said, the Senate Armed Services

Committee is being asked to speak out in favor of a U.S. initiative to convince the Soviet Union to join in mutual cessation of testing and deployment of MIRVs, which would enable a multiwarhead-equipped missile to bear in on several different targets at once.

All of these points, including the MIRV issue, were in the conclusions of a majority report of a special research subcommittee forwarded to the full committee earlier in the week.

The report will come under scrutiny of the committee when it starts serious work of marking up the $21.9 billion military procurement authorization bill Tuesday.

Since the bill includes funds to procure, develop and test Spartan and Sprint missiles for ABM use limits on any one of these activities could be written into the legislation either in the committee or on the Senate floor.

The MIRV issue is somewhat different since those who want to halt its testing and deployment pending U.S.-Soviet arms talks are trying for a policy statement rather than restrictive legislation.

The move within the committee is in addition to Sen. Edward W. Brooke's Sense-of-the-Senate resolution which now has 41 sponsors and, the Massachusetts Republican's aides say, pledges of support from more than 50 of the 100 senators.

Reports that a majority of the subcommittee's five members had agreed on Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre's proposal to permit deployment of Safeguard's computers and radars at the two sites—but without the missiles—brought Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., to the Senate floor late Thursday to object.

"They did not make any report or recommendation at all so far as the ABM or any phase of it is concerned," he said.

McIntyre then rose to report that "three members of that subcommittee agree that at the appropriate time on the agenda of our full committee discussion on the military budget, that the full committee would give ample opportunity for the presentation of alternatives to the Safeguard system."

The reason for the guarded language, sources report, is that the subcommittee had no specific powers to recommend legislation.

Wedding Bells For Daughter Of VP Agnew

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — Vice President and Mrs. Spiro T. Agnew's oldest daughter, Pamela, becomes the bride of Robert DeHaven today. President Nixon and his family plan to attend the wedding.

Only family members and close friends were invited to the 4 p.m. EDT single-ring ceremony in Towson Presbyterian Church.

Miss Agnew chose a silk organza gown with a scoop neck, empire waistline and long, full sleeves. Her veil is from the top of the head, set back, and meets a shoulder train which goes all the way to the floor.

Both the bride and bridegroom are 25. They have been engaged for more than two years.

Miss Agnew is a social worker with the Baltimore County Department of Social Services.

DeHaven recently accepted a job as curriculum specialist on special education for four counties on Maryland's Eastern Shore where they plan to reside. They are still house-hunting.

The Agnew family has lived in Baltimore County for a number of years. Agnew was county executive for four years prior to becoming governor of Maryland in 1967.

President and Mrs. Nixon will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. David Eisenhower and Tricia Nixon on their helicopter flight from the White House to the Baltimore suburb. They will leave by helicopter for Camp David, Md., immediately after the ceremony.

New French Premier Promises New Ideas

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS (AP) — Suave, bright-eyed Jacques Chaban-Delmas, France's new premier, is the incarnation of President Georges Pompidou's campaign promise of continuity and new ideas.

Chaban-Delmas, 54, was a wartime resistance leader but was not with the coterie that surrounded De Gaulle. During his political career he has been favorable to Gaullist principles but not unwaveringly attached to De Gaulle himself.

He accepted ministries in the Fourth Republic at a time when it was fashionable for hard-core Gaullists to shun the off-chance of government. But as defense minister in 1958, he helped in the maneuvering that led to De Gaulle's return to power.

Paul Reynaud was De Gaulle's choice for president of the National Assembly when the Fifth Republic was installed in 1959, but Chaban-Delmas opposed Reynaud and won. By protocol the job ranked fourth in France, but Chaban-Delmas was never invited to move closer to the formation of policy.

Thus Chaban-Delmas has been a faithful Gaullist in his own fashion and can confidently claim to represent a continuity of Gaullist policy. But he has also been an outsider to the real inner circle, and can pretend to bring a new face and new methods of government.

The move to the Hotel Matignon, the premier's office and residence, may force some radical changes in Chaban-Delmas' rhythm of living.

He has been mayor of Bordeaux since 1947, and has established a routine of spending four days in Paris and three days in Bordeaux. The premier's duties may force him to devote much more of his time to Paris.

And he may have much less time for his athletic activities.

Chaban-Delmas was an avid rugby player in his younger days and was selected for French amateur teams in international competitions. Later he turned to tennis and got all the way to the finals of the men's doubles in the French national championships in 1965.

He still plays tennis, and one of his partners has been U.S. Ambassador Sargent Shriver.

Ecuador Places Blame on U.S. After Seizure of Tuna Boats

QUITO, Ecuador (UPI)—Ecuador today deplored what it called provocations by American fishing firms that send their boats into its territorial waters.

An Ecuadorian Navy gunboat Friday seized four U.S. and three Japanese tuna boats inside the 200-mile limit Ecuador recognizes. They were released later unharmed.

The foreign ministry followed the release with a communique saying some of the seized boats had Ecuadorian permits to fish in the territorial waters but others were not fishing and had no business there.

"Ships without government fishing permits were believed sent to Ecuadorian waters by certain North American firms with the evident intention of provocation," the foreign ministry said.

"It is deplorable that these acts, motivated by the interests of a few private firms without consultation with their government, should occur just when Ecuador . . . and the United States seek a climate of respect and understanding."

The United States recognizes a 12-mile territorial limit for fishing, considering it legal for any U.S. boats to go as close as 12 miles to a foreign shore to fish without danger of seizure.

Ecuador denied its gunboat had opened fire on one of the tuna boats as charged by the San Diego-based American Tunaboat Association.

It was the latest in a series of seizures by Latin American countries claiming 200-mile territorial limits. Peru since January has captured and then released at least five American fishing boats.

Widening of Broadway Slated for Fall by KURA

KINGSTON

The Kingston Urban Renewal Agency has provided a broad review of its programs in Uptown and Downtown Kingston, several of which were reported in The Freeman on Friday.

The agency also disclosed plans for the widening of Broadway from Stuyvesant Street to Perry Street, a project that will begin in October. It is expected that underground work will be done in the winter and encompass such things as water and sewage lines. Paving will begin in the spring to coincide with the proposed city hall construction on the corner of Broadway and Meadow Street.

The agency also disclosed plans for Uptown site improvement work in the Washington Avenue area. That contract is expected to be let on Aug. 1.

James G. Connors, executive director of the agency, said that problems involving historical sites on Converse Street had been worked out with city officials and local historical groups and that historical sites would be by-passed.

The agency also expects to let a contract for the relocation of graves in the old St. Mary's Cemetery. The work will be under the supervision of Daniel Halloran, a local funeral director. It is expected that any remains found will be placed in a common grave behind St. Mary's with an appropriate plaque.

A local architect, Herbert Mayer of John Street, has been retained by the agency to design a semi-mall in the Uptown area.

The agency also reviewed plans for its flood control project on Murphy Street which involves the building of a dike by the Army Corps of Engineers. According to Connors, the Corps of Engineers expects final approval of its plans for the project by August. Final cost estimates will be available in the fall. Construction will depend on the availability of federal funds for the project, Connors said.

Highland, Marlboro To Vote on Expansion

SOUTHERN ULSTER

Taxpayers in two southern Ulster County School Districts will vote on proposals to expand and improve their educational facilities at special referendums Monday and Tuesday.

On Monday voters in the Highland Central School District will reconsider a proposal, narrowly defeated in an earlier referendum, to build a K-4 elementary school in the Decker-Distasi site at a total cost of $2,535,000.

And on Tuesday, the Marlboro Central School District will hold a special referendum asking taxpayers to vote on a proposal to make additions and improvements to two schools in the district at a cost of $326,000.

The Highland referendum will be held in Highland High School and the special vote in Marlboro will be held in the Marlboro Middle School. The polls will be open from 2 to 9 p. m. in both school districts.

Voters in Highland defeated a similar bond issue to the one they will consider Monday by six votes. District officials say that because of this set-back two grades in the elementary school are being forced into split sessions next year.

In a statement released to the taxpayers recently the officials warn that more grades might be forced to go on split sessions because there will be an elementary school enrollment of 1170 next year in rooms that can reasonably house 800 pupils.

The bond issue to be voted on in Marlboro calls for the construction of a cafeteria facility on the southwest corner of the Middle Hope School and the reconstruction of part of the Marlboro Middle School facility.

Mystery Special
The First Hallmark Hall of Fame drama special for the 1969-70 season, this program's 19th, will be "The File on Devlin," scheduled for a 90-minute outing on Nov. 21. Elizabeth Ashley and Judith Anderson will have two of the leading roles in Michael Dyne's adaptation of Catherine Gaspin's 1965 novel of the same title. The story deals with the mysterious disappearance of a Nobel Prize-winning novelist.

This Could Be THE GIANT

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA
"THIS IS THE DAWNING OF THE AGE OF AQUARIUS..."

So enthuses with a touch of zodiacal prophecy the runaway hit song from Broadway's hit of hits, "Hair."

Truer words were never spoken, it would appear. For on 500 acres of cleared countryside down Wallkill way, an Aquarian Exposition will take over on Aug. 16 and 17—and, from the look of things, it'll out-pop those all-time, biggest-of-them-all musical bashes, the legendary Monterey Pop Festivals.

Rocking sons and daughters from all over the country are expected to pour into sleepy little Wallkill at the rate of over 100,000 per day for the first annual Woodstock Music and Art Fair—An Aquarian Exposition, being touted as the largest extravaganza in the history of modern musical events.

A Real Giant

That's a pretty big claim to fame, but in a summer when the magic word of the Now Generation is "festival," Tempo would have to agree that the producers of this Aquarian fling at contemporary music and art could well come up with the real giant of all two-day festivals. It's hard to see this musical spectacular missing since it'll present what is probably the most important lineup of top name talent to headline such an event.

Furnishing continuous music for 12 straight hours each day (2 p. m. to 2 a. m.) will be such top name entertainment as Blood Sweat and Tears; Creedence Clearwater Revival, The Band; Canned Heat; Crosby, Stills and Nash; Arlo Guthrie; Tim Hardin; Richie Havens; Iron Butterfly; Jef-erson Airplane; Janis Joplin; Laura Nyro; The Moody Blues; Sly and the Family Stone; and Johnny Winter.

These are the top rock acts in the country today and when they descend on Wallkill Aug. 16 and 17, their two-nights, two-days stint will mark the first full-length festival to be held in the state of New York. It'll be the zenith... a culmination of all the Monterey, Miami, Newport and other festivals rolled into one, with large portions of Fillmores East and West thrown in for good measure.

Work is already underway on the Wallkill countryside for this mammoth open air exhibition of contemporary music, painting, sculpture and photography. As the producers pray for sunny skies and dream of thousands of migrating music lovers, they also think about the hard facts of life.

500 Artists, Too

The music has been taken care of with the signing of topnotch groups. The Art Fair portion of the Expo will include over 500 exhibitors in a competitive invitational show offering scholarships and prizes awarded to outstanding works. Twenty-foot sculptures representing signs of the Zodiac will mark the perimeter of the performance and spectator area, including a specially designed stage arena for unobstructed sight and sound lines.

But more mundane problems, too, are involved in a venture as big as this. With the site picked and musicians on their way, Woodstock Ventures, Inc., which is sponsoring the festival, has to consider water and power facilities on their rural 500 acres. Saturday and Sunday visitors will need toilet facilities aplenty in the way of portable huts. The sprawling acreage will have to be fenced in to keep order and make ticket collecting easy. Some of the music lovers will want places to camp and the sound system will have to be a real honey to project loud and clear over all that area. The stage has to be built to afford good vision to the whole audience, and the performers will expect dressing rooms and plenty of space to stash all those patiently waiting amplifiers, drum sets, pianos, organs and instruments.

Still, when it comes off, it'll be the living end. Thousands of visitors will be there to dig the rock as it wafts out over the Catskills, and they'll wander around the grounds, looking at the exhibits of painting, photographs, and sculpture, or sit for a spell and watch some of the theatre groups performing here and there on the edges of the action.

While some confusion accompanied the first announcement of the Woodstock Music and Art Fair, mainly because of the use of "Woodstock" in the title, rock fans can rest assured that the Aquarian Expo will hold forth in Wallkill and not in Woodstock. For more than a month, the Woodstock Playhouse and other business establishments in the art colony have been flooded with requests for tickets to the festival since word first spread that the tentative site was "up near Woodstock." In spite of some protests, the name stays the same (Woodstock Music and Art Fair, sponsored by Woodstock Ventures, Inc.) Even though it's not being held in the art colony, the producers know "Woodstock" rings a bell for the hip swingers of today.

Tickets Now on Sale

Those interested in getting their tickets early shouldn't waste time trying to find them in Woodstock. Low-priced tickets at $7 per day or $13 for the two days may be purchased by mail through Woodstock Ventures, Inc., Box 996, Radio City Station, New York, N. Y. 10019. All tickets purchased through box office window sales at the Wallkill site will be sold at $8 per day, with no discount allowed for a two-day purchase.

Who's behind the multi-million dollar entertainment complex at Woodstock Ventures? Tempo hears Peter Leeds and Howard Hirsch will coordinate the Art Fair, and overall coordination of the musical fair is under the directorship of Michael Lange and Artie Kornfeld. Other veteran pop music leaders involved are John Morris, once manager of Fillmore East, Chip Monck, previously tech director of the Fillmores East and West and the Miami and Monterey Pop Festivals; and Mel Lawrence, former associate producer at the Miami Pop.

The popularity of such festivals stems from a combination of things. From where Tempo sits, the Wallkill festival would seem to have the proper combination for a winning event. The hottest properties on the band and vocal scenes in the U.S. today will be there and all Ulster County has to do is get used to the fact that it's now in the mainstream of the Rock-Blues movement and could very well remain there for some time.

History Course Via 'Antiques'

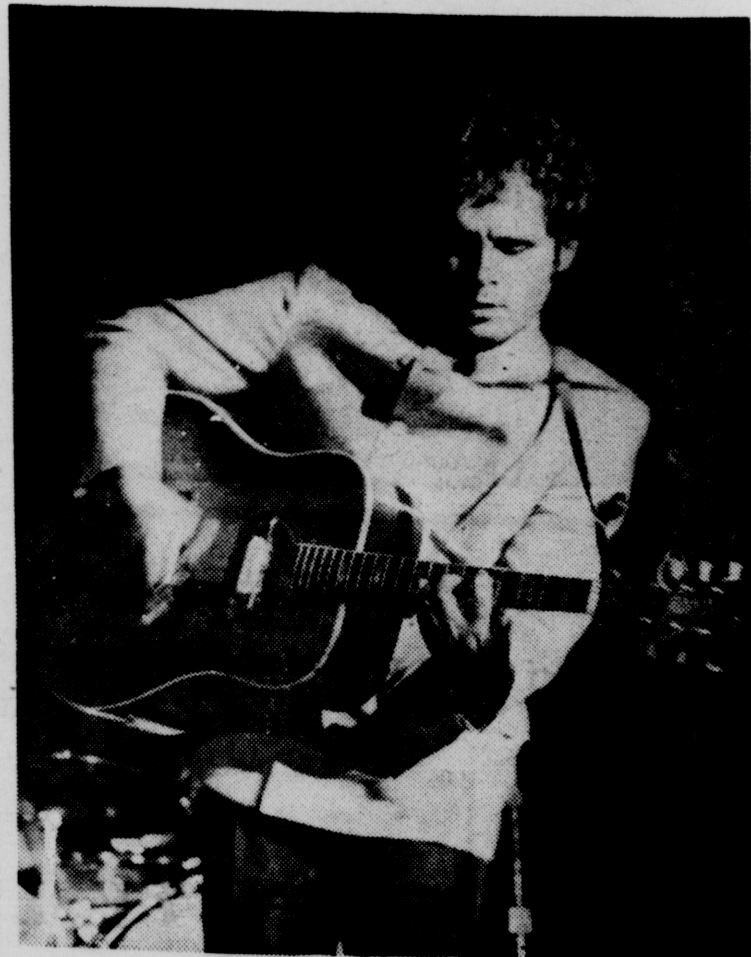

A credit-free course in the history of the Hudson Valley through antiques starts next month at Dutchess Community College.

The program, tracing Hudson Valley history and growth through antiques the region has produced, is slated Monday through Thursday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. beginning July 7 and concluding July 17. Closing date for registration is June 27.

Instructor for the course, which does not require homework assignments or examinations, will be Arthur Hopkins. Guest lecturers will speak on special topics and actual antiques will be used as illustrations.

Topics will include the Hudson River school of painting, Currier and Ives, architectural styles, effects of industrialization and transportation on style development, and New England, Dutch, and Shaker influences.

The course will also include a study tour of a local historic house or museum.

TIM HARDIN

For Local Ballerinas:

A Chance to Dance With the Greatest

Jacques d'Amboise, Melissa Hayden, Conrad Ludlow, Patricia McBride, Nicholas Magallanes, Peter Martins, Arthur Mitchell, Francisco Moncion, Violette Verdy, Edward Villella!

These names are recognized the world over as belonging to some of the greatest ballet dancers before the public today, and as members of the New York City Ballet, one of the world's greatest ballet companies.

Melissa Koch, Maria Barrecchia, Sara Hutton, Vicky Leyden, Julia O'Donald!

These names are known by relatives and friends as talented young dancers and students at the Kingston School of Ballet. Because of the inspired tutelage of their teacher, Janet Reed, and their own dreams to be successful at being dancers, their names, too, may some day be hailed by audiences and critics.

Outperformed 250 Competing

They have seemingly reached the first milestone. In what can only be called a major accomplishment, this quintet of winsome Kingston area ballerinas has been selected to perform in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" when the New York City Ballet returns to its summer home at the Saratoga Performing Arts Center. Against competitive odds that would have staggered far older and more experienced dancers, these local lassies won their chance to appear at SPAC by outdancing and outperforming the vast majority of some 250 ballet students in the Upstate New York area who auditioned for dancing roles in the famed George Balanchine's full-length ballet.

Only 25 young dancers got the nod to appear with Saratoga's in-residence company out of the 250 who tried out . . . and Ulsterites can applaud the fact that Janet Reed's ballerinas took five of those spots—a showing of which all concerned should be proud.

Tempo readers will know that New York City Ballet dancers have become favorites with area audiences during the past three summers at Saratoga. And all will be back with the company when it returns for its fourth season, opening July 3 with "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and extending through July 27. The prima dancers of the Gotham ballet will present 22 performances of 10 programs featuring 31 repertoire works at SPAC this season, including the full length "Dream" in which Melissa, Sara, Julia and Vicky will dance when the work again inaugurates the opening weekend of the new SPAC season July 3. The quintet will also be seen in the other three performances of "Dream" to be done July 4, 5 and 6.

A Proud Teacher

Janet Reed, herself a former prima ballerina of New York City Ballet, American Ballet Theater and San Francisco Ballet, is inordinately proud of this showing by her pupils and of their future potential. A dancer who once toured the U.S. and Europe for several seasons, she retired as a performer; became assistant to George Balanchine, the great musician-dancer who serves as director and choreographer of New York City Ballet. Now Mrs. Branson Erskine of Rhinebeck and the mother of two children, she has opened her own school in Kingston; concentrates on teaching and helping talented youngsters to develop their professional skills to the fullest extent.

What she has taught them of exuberance, youthful enthusiasm and charm will be displayed by Melissa, Maria, Julia, Vicky and Sara in early July when they take to SPAC's stage with Suzanne Farrell as Titania, Edward Villella as Oberon and Arthur Mitchell as Puck.

A Touch of Ribbon & Lace

For the first time in her highly successful career as a French folksongstress, Sonia Malkine has donned the traditional costume she has often remembered with pleasure and nostalgic affection. A long-time resident of the hamlet of Shady in Woodstock, she grew up on the Brittany coast in France.

Over the years here she has performed in whatever attire seemed to suit the occasion and the audience. And since Sonia's voice is lilting, sweet and pure, it mattered little to her listeners whether she wore a peasant skirt and blouse or a sleek black cocktail dress. Now, however, she's appearing in a costume that matches her repertoire; one that has its background in mythology. Each small town in Brittany boasts its individual coiffure style: pink ribbons for eligible beauties; white for brides, blue for married women with an added decoration of flowers if they are mothers, and the traditional black for widows.

Bedecked in ribbons and lace, Sonia Malkine will be appearing in a round of folk festivals this season. Just back from the Florida Folk Festival, held annually at Stephen Foster Memorial Park way down upon the Suwannee River, she'll head shortly for the Newport (R.I.) and Fox Hollow (in nearby Petersburg, N. Y.) Folk Festivals, and for the National Folk Festival, slated at the University of Tennessee this year.

The warm-voiced songstress has a special affection for the small, intimate festivals like those in Florida and Fox Hollow (where the notorious "Legs" Diamond once hid out). She feels they are typical of the friendly atmosphere prevailing at such events, and offer those attending as listeners a chance to mingle with the performers and feel themselves a part of the proceedings. But she is equally at home in such epic, national productions as those at Newport and the U. of Tennessee which draw upwards of a quarter million people and feature a cast of thousands.

She's convinced that the spectators at these larger undertakings enjoy the flooding plethora of sights, sounds, activity and massed humanity, but bemoans the fact that the average listener is sometimes a fifth of a mile away from the performing artist.

Locally, Sonia will appear at the Woodstock Playhouse this summer for a special concert. Always busy and constantly on the go, she has traveled widely while making and starring in two new TV series since last summer. Her newest video program is just now premiering in Pennsylvania; is seen in seven major cities there including Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. Filmed in color at five separate college campus locales, it's an educational television production. TV fans saw Sonia as a featured guest on Pete Seeger's "Rainbow Quest" series during the winter. Phonograph records of her work are available through Folk Music in Woodstock, the firm which also manages her affairs.

SONIA IN TRADITIONAL COSTUME

Pop Music Festival

INDIVIDUAL ARTISTS in solo performances and a rousing brother team together, Happy and Artie Traum are among the outstanding performers who'll be seen this season in the Woodstock Playhouse's Monday night Music Festival Series. The pop music evenings begin July 7 with Kladeidoscope, the big hit group at last year's Newport Festival. The Traum boys follow July 14, to be followed in turn by such tremendous talents as: Dave Von Ronk on July 21; Tim Hardin on July 28; "Mr. Bojangles" himself—Jerry Walker—on Aug. 4; the inimitable Tom Paxton on Aug. 11; and Patrick Sky on Aug. 18. The series does a switch Monday, Aug. 25, when the Playhouse will present one of today's great mime artists, Tony Montanaro, in an Evening of Mime. Get your tickets for these fabulous musical offerings now. Seats to all events are $2.95; may be obtained by writing to the Woodstock Playhouse, P. O. Box 268, Woodstock, N. Y. 12498.

'New' Music Concerts at Cinema

In the potluck, fast-buck world of today's pop music, the Aboriginal Music Society is something of a breath of fresh air. And it's not that the AMS isn't with it. They're very much with it, but with a rather rare dedication to creating a fusion between jazz and the original music of Africa.

Currently, this new and exciting musical group is also very much a part of the Woodstock scene. A seven-member aggregation of fine jazz musicians, the group bases its compositions around the strong polyrhythms of African music, while losing none of its deep involvement with every aspect of the jazz medium.

They seem, of all things, to play for the sheer enjoyment of it, and the source of their repertory covers everything from rhythm and blues, gospel and bebop, through avant-garde sounds—making for a dynamic combination of primitive and sophisticated musicianship.

Hearthside It's Not

Hardly music to keep the hearthside homey, it is more a rich hodgepodge of many instruments used to create a totally intense effect. AMS musicians are proficient with African percussion (Cunga, Bata, and Kinto drums; gourds, shakers, clackers, bells), as well as on the more standard instruments of the western world, like trumpet, flute, oboe, bassoon, bass, drums, and E-flat horn.

Their song bag includes the ability to switch instruments easily and most of the group boasts an adeptness at playing all of them. Earl Cross, out of St. Louis, is a top trumpet and E-flat horn man, and Juma excels on bass. Barry Ashuler is new to the group as drummer and anyone who heard these champions of 'new' music play at Group Two-One-Two last fall will remember the experience and know-how the others—all of who have played in Carnegie Hall and with many of the finest avant-garde jazz men (such as Sun Ra, Monty Waters, Noah Howard and Archie Shepp) in the U.S.

The Aboriginal Music Society is giving a series of informal concerts that are mushrooming into an evocation of the past and a scene for now during the current summer season. Each Sunday afternoon, they launch into their 'new' jazz at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema. Which means that every Sunday afternoon through summer, fans and aficionados will be paying the $1.50 admission price to hear them play from 1 to 5 p.m.

The four-hour sessions each week are also attracting many of the area's finest musicians, who have gotten into the habit of dropping by to jam it up or play sets of their own. Ergo, Sunday afternoons in Woodstock are becoming a whole new experience in sound for any number of people.

A 'Bird' in the Porridge; A Cactus That Blossoms

Into the folio at Woodstock Playhouse, producer Edgar Rosenblum has fitted two upcoming comedies. First off, "There's a Girl in My Soup" is set for a run on the art colony stage from June 24-29. Delightful and witty fare, it's all about a professional cook named Robert Danvers, whose appetite for lovely ladies equals his lust for food.

Needless to say, his womanizing gets him into a bowl of very hot porridge and trouble on the half shell. When Danvers meets Marion, a pretty mod "bird," he is both bothered and beguiled by her cool. And when Jimmy, her erstwhile boyfriend appears on the scene, the suave, over-the-hill chef finds champagne and the culinary arts are no substitute for brawn. Before the curtain rings down, audiences will learn whether a middle-aged cook can find happiness with the bird's famous friend or whether kooky Marion returns to her lino-layer drummer, Jimmy.

Versatile George Gitto, who is totally marvelous as a Broadway producer and a senile bird-watcher in the current Playhouse production of "You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running," is cast as the urbane Danvers. Cavorting with him onstage will be pert Barbara Houston as Marion, Ned Leavitt as Jimmy, and Mary Ellen Ray as Clare, "the other woman" who feels like "a plump spring chicken" to cook Danvers.

Cactus Blooms

Following "Soup" at the Playhouse will be "Cactus Flower," the Abe Burrows hit that had Broadway scraping and bowing. A triumphant success, it'll be performed July 1-6; is a wonderfully funny romp, bordering on farce.

With an off-beat painless dentist known as Julian Winston as its hero, "Cactus Flower" follows Julian's downfall by way of women. George Gitto plays professional man Julian, whose cozy arrangement includes a wonderful office, wonderful practice, and wonderful girl. Marriage would ruin all that, he's sure, but he forgets to reckon with his wonderful Girl Friday, Stephanie; underestimates her feminine appeal.

To preserve his wonderful arrangement and idyllic bachelor state, he produces a fictional wife, and the whole shooting match explodes in his face when he picks the wrong gal to impersonate her.

Mary Ellen Ray plays the Stephanie role created by Lauren Bacall on Broadway and Ingrid Bergman in the movie. Barbara Houston is Toni, the wonderful Greenwich Village girlfriend; Ned Leavitt is Igor, Toni's muscular neighbor; and Bill Metzo is Senor Sanchez, the Spanish dental patient who forgets his cavities when Stephanie is around.

In Review

(A word from your editor about the current Playhouse production, "You Know I Can't Hear You," still yours for the seeing through tomorrow night. Written by gentleman playwright Robert Anderson of "Tea and Sympathy" fame, it's a little offbeat and offcolor for Anderson—just dirty enough to wow suburbia, but not too crude for the pruders. Actually, four very commercial sex comedies of one-act each make up the play—and we're not denying it's lots of fun. But it's already dated by today's standards; is slight, superficial and single-minded in its concern with the mechanical aspects of sex and how foolish grownups are about it all.

There are plenty of clear comic strokes evident in the first work when a playwright (played with too much male heaving by Ned Leavitt) decides to divest his latest hero of all his clothes on stage. His producer (George Gitto is a ringer for the breed in an excellent bit of casting) is dubious; calls in a waiting actor to prove no one would strip before an audience. The actor, in Charles Welch's superbly comic performance, turns out to be all too willing.

In the second play, Welch goes shopping for twin beds with his over-the-pill wife (Mary Ellen Ray). Again Welch is marvelous in a part played with broad comic license as the husband who likes his double bed, and Miss Ray is adequate as a wife yearning for solitary reclinement. While she hunts for headboards offstage, he encounters a redheaded divorcee (Barbara Houston, who seemed to look upon her part as a trampoline performer) contorting on the bedding department's samples. By playlet's end, the divorcee gets the old double with the promise of hubby as a frequent visitors, and the wife orders her twins.

In the third play, a married couple clashes, humorously, on the sex education of their offspring. Wife Mary Ellen Ray proves a competent actress as the lady who wants to send her daughter off to college prepared for anything. Charles Welch is properly serious as an old-fashioned moralist of a father. As comedy, it suddenly turns too serious to promote its rather sappy message. The last play, about a senile pair's confusion of affairs and marriages (they no longer remember who was matched up with whom), had us in hysterics. It may have been burlesque, but it was superior burlesque, with Mary Ellen Ray fabulous as the impatient and now gray haired beauty of yore whose escapades are presently confined to her rocking chair, and George Gitto attacking the farcical role of her aged husband with hard-milled humor and gay gusto.)

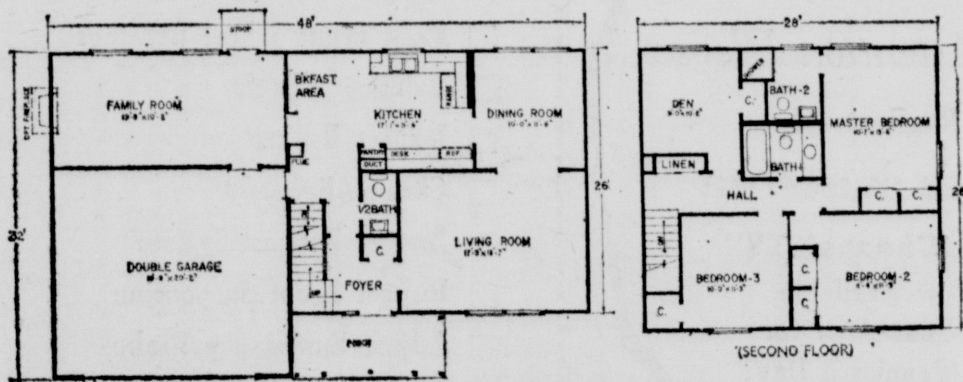

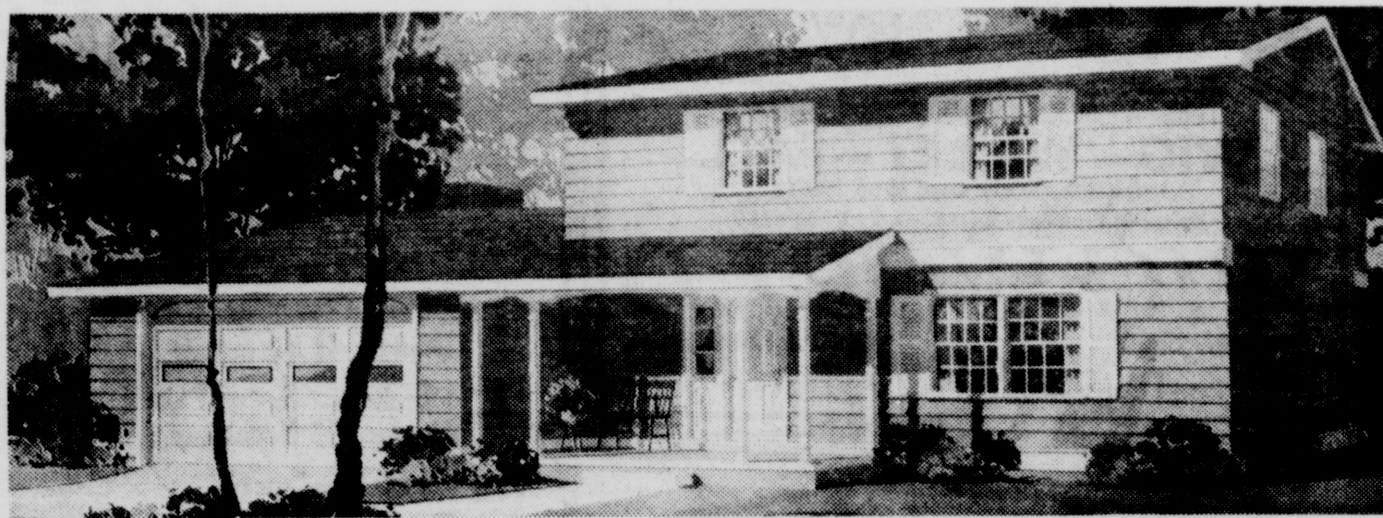

A PLUMP SPRING CHICKEN is just what the chef ordered in "There's a Girl in My Soup," and to Mary Ellen Ray falls the task of making such character come to life in the comedy opening June 24 in Woodstock for a week's run.

NED LEAVITT, who is anything but muscular in the Playhouse's current production of "You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running" (he plays the dreamy playwright), will portray a muscular neighbor in "Cactus Flower."

MOVIES

JIM BROWN is a cool naval man in "Ice Station Zebra," the adventure movie that takes viewers on a race to the North Pole via nuclear submarine. The he-man film proves exciting fun at the Community Theatre here in Kingston.

Finian's Rainbow

When Finian McLonergan first appeared on the theatrical scene, he found a place in our hearts as one of the all-stage greats. And when "Finian's Rainbow" first bowed 20 years ago, it was one of the most delightful, whimsical, socially-conscious musical plays ever written. But that was before Martin Luther King dreamed at the Washington Monument, before Little Rock, Birmingham and Selma, before Eldridge Cleaver's soul was iced and Malcolm

X's eyes were closed forever in Harlem. "Finian's Rainbow" in its movie adaptation is dated today; should never have been treated to a rebirth as a civil rights vehicle. A musical smash in 1947, its score was and still is a total delight. But the whimsy of the dialogue is lost in 1969 as Finian comes with his daughter to the sharecropper's Rainbow Valley near Fort Knox to get rich on a pot of gold stolen from a leprechaun back home in Ireland. When the leprechaun follows, the social significance is supposed to hit us right in the heart and head. That's because the sharecroppers get done out of their share by a bigoted Southern Senator, who gets turned into a Negro to teach him a lesson. It was too hot for Hollywood to handle in the days of Senator Bilbo, when it would have been a message Hollywood might have felt privileged to bring to America. Filmtown waited too long, and the message is now as cold as polar ice. Now playing at Kingston's Mayfair in a mammoth Panavision production, Finian lacks everything it once boasted. The Bilbo types are out today, along with the Steppin Fetchits, and the biting satire of two decades ago is a tame and tasteless gimmick now. Redneck sheriffs and leprechauns look silly together on the wide screen, and Fred Astair is not and never could be a proper Finian. He hasn't the proper brouge, darlin'—even though Toomy Steele and Pet Clark are winsome enough as the leprechaun and Finian's daughter.

Finian, unfortunately and to our sad regret, has become a fiasco on film, even though we grew misty when songs like "How Are Things in Glocca Mora?" "That Old Devil Moon," "If This Isn't Love" and "When I'm Not Near the Girl I Love" were rendered.

Only Kids Behind the Arm Bands

"The Strawberry Statement," (Random House, 4.95) by James Simon Kunen

One sunny afternoon during the protest demonstrations at Columbia University last year, newsmen waiting for action were startled to see a group of bearded, long-haired SDS members trot out of a building and begin to play baseball.

James Kunen's book on the upheaval and the summer following it reminds the reader the students were not reincarnations of Lenin and Trotsky but, behind the rallies and red arm bands, just a bunch of kids.

The history of events at Columbia has been more fully reported elsewhere but Kunen captures the flavor of what happened.

He is occasionally guilty of posing which makes one want to groan aloud, but at his best he is brilliant. At one point he mentions the cockroaches who share his apartment and goes on to say:

"Actually the parallels between my roaches and the Viet Cong can hardly be ignored. There are seventeen parallels. Both my roaches and the VC are indigenous forces, are ignorant, ill-clad and underfed; they both drag away the bodies of their slain, come back no matter how many are killed, move by night, avoid prolonged engagements with the enemy, are not white, are fighting against people who are, have been fighting for generations, move via infiltration routes, are wily, are out-armed by the enemy, are contemptuous of death, are independent of outside control, are inscrutable and are winning."

Barbara Balks

NEW YORK (UPI)—The CBS "Mission: Impossible" series has a nonfiction cliffhanger right in its Paramount Television studios in Hollywood. Will Barbara Bain be back? Her husband, Martin Landau, a regular for three years on a year-to-year agreement, will not return because long negotiations failed to bring the personal raise he asked. Miss Bain, who was with the series when it began, has a five-year contract which is now in its fourth year. She failed to show episodes began.

JEFF JEANNENEY, son of Mrs. Janet Jeanneney of New Paltz, plays cowboy on a big tree limb.

JENNIFER GREEN, daughter of the Kenneth Greens, poses in garden with one of her artist father's sculptures.

WENDY WOOLLEY, daughter of professional photographer A. E. Woolley, sits for a portrait in profile.

A Talented Photographer and His Winsome Portraits

It has been observed that the arts begin with the crafts. And if photography began as a craft, the more talented of its practitioners have proceeded to earn it the title of art.

Among photographers in our area, A. E. Woolley of New Paltz would have to be considered one of the most significant . . . for he has achieved impressive levels of workmanship and product. His talent and skill with a camera covers many fields, but his artistic craftsmanship is totally evident in his photographs of children.

History shows that when the U.S. was young, it was of necessity pragmatic in its concerns and most citizens cared little for art except for "family likenesses." Antedating the advent of photography and making up for the lack of trained artists, many sign and house painters took to painting portraits of eager sitters, most of them from well-to-do families.

Today, "family likenesses" are still popular, but the photographer and his lens are often more sought out than the portrait painter. When one views the informal photographic portraits of an artist like Woolley, it is not difficult to understand why.

Woolley combines authorship along with his photography, and the June issue of "Photographic Business and Product News Magazine" contains an article by him. Titled "An Informal Approach to Portraiture," it is illustrated with winsome photographs of some of the most winsome children in the New Paltz area.

In the article Woolley presents his approach to photographing young people, and it is definitely an approach that bears some of the brightest fruit on film. The techniques this New Paltz professional photographer uses in magazine photojournalism have been applied with highly successful results to making photographs of children.

Woolley excels at photojournalism; has an impressive list of travel books and magazine articles to his credit. Landscape photography through his lens emerges as a canvas of pure art. Recently he has branched out into ownership of Dissemination Consultant Services, a communications agency located in New Paltz that specializes in visual presentations for business, industry and education.

And Woolley is at his most visual in the June article in Photographic Business and Product News. Infinitely charming are the illustrations for the text. All photographic portraits of New Paltz youngsters, they capture the essence of childhood's innocent years. Selected to accompany the article were photos of Jeff Jeanneney, son of Mrs. Janet Jeanneney; Amy and Nanette LeFevre, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Jay A. LeFevre; and Andrey Fishborne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. St. Julian Fishborne.

Tempo liked them so well, we persuaded Woolley to allow us to use the accompanying series of photographs to prove our point. We think you'll agree that such informal portraits by a photographer like Woolley deserve the title of inspired art; are a far cry from a family likeness painted by a house painter of colonial days.

The portrait article in the June issue of the photography magazine is the first of several articles by Woolley to be published by that magazine and its associate publication in the PTN Publishing Corporation. Coming up soon in a future issue will be one dealing with architecture and illustrated with buildings in the Hudson Valley. (T.G.)

North Pole in Cinerama. This is a film for children of all ages; filled with adventurous he-men, a race to the pole between Americans and Russians, spies, encounters at gunpoint, and lots of other shenanigans.

Rock Hudson is at the helm for the U.S., assisted by Jim Brown and others. After a rather dull start involving nautical things, the excitement really take off amid the ice floes and the ending is a hum-dinger of a showdown between the good guys and the bad guys.

Support Your Local Sheriff

The finest film of its kind since "Cat Ballou," this movie is now playing at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema. It's first-rate spoof of Westerns with a witty script by William Bowers. Funny, low-key, intelligent, with humor coming from observing excellent collection of cliched Western characters given comic twists and slyly acted. James Garner excels as the man passing through a wild town who takes the job of sheriff and proceeds to confound everyone. Joan Hackett is superlative as the femme love interest in the plot, and Walter Brennan and Harry Morgan add luster to this satirical bit of fun.

Fistful of Dollars and A Few Dollars More

Clint Eastwood returns to Kingston in two westerns that have played here before and are back yet again at the 9-W Drive-In.

Eastwood is this generation's answer to the Gary Cooper cowboy: tough, taciturn and temperamental. The fastest gun on any screen, he would snicker at Coop's charm; prefers to drape himself in a serape, stick a cigarillo in his mouth, and lope around with squint-eyed deadliness.

He rarely makes westerns out west; prefers to screen 'em overseas. After more than seven years riding tall in the TV saddle on "Rawhide," he went to Italy to do the double feature at the local drive-in. Bloody and violent, they're "A Fistful of Dollars," in which Eastwood gives his classic portrayal of The Man With No Name, and its sequel, "For a Few Dollars More," just as successful at the box office and just as gory.

Before Winter Comes

Offered at the Rosendale Theatre currently is "Before

Winter Comes," and it's the arguments with officials. In this first time the film has been shown in this area. It takes place at the end of World War II, when a British Major (David Niven) is demoted from his regiment due to an act of bravery that misfired. Assigned to command a Displaced Persons camp in Austria, he supervises the constant arrival of frightened civilian war victims, refugees of various nationalities, and others who must be resettled with either the Americans or the Russians.

His days are filled with the problems of the homeless and bewildered and with endless film, every refugee wants to go to the U. S. zone, but the Russians insist on regaining their own people. Confusion is created by the language barrier until a colorful interpreter (played by the very talented Topol) turns up. He proceeds to pit his wit and intelligence against army codes of behavior. There's an ironical and probable climax; the picture has humanity and some fine performances; and Niven and Topol, a gifted Israeli actor, are moving and endearing. (REVIEWED BY TOBIE GEERT-SEMA)

Already Professional at Ten

He's only 10 years old and he has the blonde, well-scrubbed good looks of, say, Oliver Twist, once his Dickensian ordeal was behind him and he had bloomed into pink-cheeked handsomeness in his new home.

Edmond Fabbie, with only one decade behind him, blooms best at the keyboard of a Steinway. He showed his prowess over this instrument recently when he entertained the Ulster County Chapter of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic at its annual meeting in the Mt. Marion home of Mrs. Roland Tonnesen. Edmond performed the famous but difficult Op. 49 No. 2, the classical sonata by Ludwig von Beethoven, and did so with rare feeling and mastery for one so young. Philharmonic board members applauded him enthusiastically and Ulster Council president Norman Rafalowsky had special praise for the youthful Mr. Fabbie as an inspiration to music students in the area.

Edmond has studied piano for the past three years with Mrs. Tonnesen; has performed at numerous recitals, including one at State University of New York at New Paltz. The son of Mrs. C. Lester Legg Jr., of 68 Wilson Avenue, Kingston, he's a student at the Brigham School here.

No one has to ask Edmond about his ambitions. You need only hear Tchaikovsky, Liszt, Chopin and others to know that his ambition is to be a concert pianist. An admirer of Vladimir Horowitz and Arthur Rubinstein, his dreams are of continuing in their footsteps and of someday representing the U.S. in the challenging Tchaikovsky competition that attracts the finest musicians in the world to Russia for the Moscow prize.

NICKFORD'S "REFLECTION" is reflected in turn by shadow it casts on wall of Ann Leonard's Boutique and Art Gallery in Woodstock, where works of the Cuban born sculptor are now being shown. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Art lovers will find the sculptures of Cuban born Juan Nickford, now on view through June 30 at the Leonard Gallery, works that speak a language of their own. Not all women are so cold as those portrayed in Nickford's "The Visit" (a haughty beauty draped in a cape), or in his "Reflection," (a vain lass peering into her mirror). And not all men are so trapped by the social codes and business world as his "Sebastian" (tied at the wrists and attacked at the knees), or the figure in "Burden" (chomping a big cigar and carrying a big load). But all of us will recognize something of ourselves in Nickford's superlative sculptures.

The artist came from Havana in the 1950's to become an American citizen; has since taught at Poughkeepsie's Vassar College, Smith College, and the Santa Clara Art School. A winner of the Avery Prize from the Architectural League of New York, the Patron's Prize at an Audubon Annual, and other awards and grants, he has been widely exhibited throughout all parts of the U.S., but nowhere more prestigiously than in his current Woodstock Show. Dining Out Ever since soul food was voted "in," we've been contemplating a column on the sudden urge of whites in all parts of the U.S. to partake of food that leans to things fried and boiled.

Scores of soul restaurants catering to whites have sprung up in the North in recent months, and there is a very real chance that, here in Ulster, diners will soon be rubbing elbows over helpings of collard greens and hamhocks, black-eyed peas and hog jowls, barbecued ribs, candied yams, fried okra, corn bread and those crepes suzettes of soul gourmets, chitterlings.

New York City has a half dozen soul eating spots outside the predominantly black neighborhoods and, on a trip to Manhattan recently, we dropped in to the West Boon Dock on 10th Avenue, an "in" soul food restaurant.

Yes, You Can

New York City has a half dozen soul eating spots outside the predominantly black neighborhoods and, on a trip to Manhattan recently, we dropped in to the West Boon Dock on 10th Avenue, an "in" soul food restaurant.

Yes, You Can

It was like going home again — back to the South in the Great Depression. That's where we grew up and when we grew up, and go ourselves raised on equal quantities of soul food and soul music; both of which came out of Southern slave quarters and have gone everywhere the American Negro has gone. The food has long been a tradition with white Southerners as well as Negroes.

But Southern whites of our era would laugh their cotton pickin' heads off at the willingness of today's Northern white truck drivers, longshoremen, secretaries and jet set members to pay exorbitantly high prices for pig intestines, fat back, hogs head, pigs feet and tripe, while listening to juke boxes inevitably loaded with mournful soul records.

As a Southerner who ate low off the hog as a result of mom's economy in the Depression days, we have to admit that we have long dug the music — but never really cared much for digging into the food.

Let's face it, what today's diners are paying high prices to eat is the food of the slave and, as such, was prepared from the cheapest meats and vegetables available. Fried and filled with cholesterol, the dishes usually made do with pork parts that often were discarded by Big Massa. Chitterlings (pronounced "chitlins") is just plain ole pig intestines. Like, UGH, man. Even Lou Rawls or Aretha Franklin in the background don't change that.

Far From Delicacies

These dishes were not meant to be delicacies, but a staple diet for a man putting in 12 hours of hard work, and for his wife and brood, who had never tasted steak and probably never would. The poorest of poor meat parts were supplemented with greens like kale and collards and dandelions, and with starchy foods — sweet potatoes, rice, noodles and dumplings. Corn breads were also important and such variants as hoecakes often served as an entire meal. We can remember eating hoecakes and buttermilk and nothing else of an evening, but they sure beat chitlins and collard greens!

Potpourri

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

If you weren't clad in bustle 'n bows and escorted by goateed-beau, you weren't with it Saturday night at John Novi's invitation-only pre-grand opening at High Falls 1797 DePuy Canal Tavern. Considering all the labor John's invested to keep the old stone landmark historically authentic (as past president of the D&H Canal Historical Society, he has the necessary credentials), anyone out-of-costume should have been fed bread and water only for a week.

There was flickering candle-light, pussywillows, peppers and onions hanging from ceiling—one large onion wore sign, "That's a nice"—Dutch doors, ornamental lights, 1858 map of Ulster County, waitresses in "dustin" caps.

Breaking bread were past Cabaret emcee Bill and Betty LaVoie, golfer and Mrs. Harry Greene, Bob Herzog, Dr. Robert Moseley, Bud and Helen Davis, Attorney John Wilkie, Dr. George Bushnell, Reader's Digest's Robert Gannon, Paul Sturges and wife, local entertainer Bill Pactow, Ted Grenda, Dr. Sidney Bell and his better-half (she's modelling mink now in N. Y.) and Ken Burgess whose in-laws were previous DePuy Tavern owners.

Suzy Parkin, daughter of High Falls Rock Cliff House proprietor, lent a hand to Tom Campbell behind the booming bar; had trouble manipulating cash register—a real relic. John's sister Rachel also helped pass the Lowenbrau; heaven forbid anyone should go thirsty. BCI investigator John Salters—had he made the scene—might have made a haul checking those thumbprints torn from invitations and entitling bearers to "one on the house."

Where John got that mound of cheese guests nibbled throughout the evening, we haven't the foggiest, but NEVER have we seen its like. Burlap bag of coffee beans sat ready for brewing; John grinds his own. Buffet spread boasted squid, artichoke hearts, ham, turkey, beef and all the yummy etceteras. After eight months working in European hotels, John's ideas for food preparation offer a bit-of-a-welcome-uniqueness to area.

Patching wall and floor holes, removing ceilings to show weathered beams, and "hiding" electric wires were the difficult tasks in making break-thru; the impossible took longer. However, there IS indoor plumbing.

Conversations were in keeping with theme; even heard a heated discussion about Valley Forge. Another morsel intrigued us: gentleman arriving home with wife after evening of bit-more-than-he-should-have-had to drink was unable to get out of car. Certain he was paralyzed for life, he resolved never to touch the stuff again 'til he realized his seatbelt was still fastened.

At height of peppy period, John's mom phoned to say if he wasn't busy he should "come down to Pop's restaurant and help make a pizza." But throughout hectic evening the new proprietor lost neither his cool nor his warmth.

A last glance on leaving the tavern gave us the feeling someone had left in a hurry centuries ago; returned to find everything just as it was. For John that's our choicest compliment for having achieved what he set out to do. . . . We had just witnessed "The Prime of Mr. John Novi."

The Party to Attend: Art School's in July

Party, anyone? One of the most gala being planned for the early summer season is the cocktails-and-fun event slated at the Woodstock School of Art, beginning at 6 p.m. on Saturday, July 5.

It's being organized by students, would-be students and Woodstock citizens interested in art education; will take place on the school grounds, 29 Millstream Road, Woodstock.

The social committee, headed by Mrs. Chester Gaede, hopes to make this cocktail party even more exciting than the parties given in October when the school opened and during the Christmas season. Those two entertaining and relaxing affairs will be repeated with extra flourishes this time around.

Those attending the July event will also be offered the chance to take home framed prints and drawings by faculty members of the art school. Among the collector's items will be a lithograph by Ed Chavez, silk screens by Jerry

Where to See Them

The art works that will go to the lucky party-goers are now on view at the Woodstock Post Office, and tickets for the party are selling at $10 each. Price includes admission to the fete, food and drinks, and an opportunity to add to your home decor with a painting, drawing or print.

Only 200 tickets have been printed for the affair. These are now available from Jean Gaede, Harriet Tannin, Paula Dooley, Jane Neroni, Mary West, Ellen Pudvan or Peg Brown. Others on the committee dispensing tickets are Linda Sweeney, Ceil Rappaport and Cookie Neher; or tickets may be obtained at the Woodstock School of Art, 679-8998.

We're going! How about you?

Television: Ho-Hum Season of Re-Runs

That TV Performer of the Year, Glen Campbell, and his Goodtime Hour will be back next season. He's just been replaced for the summer by that all-time swinger, Tarzan, played by Ron Ely.

Diana Rigg, who played on The Avengers, has given up karate in favor of Shakespeare. She's been acting in London-based theater productions and her only U.S. exposure this season came on CBS-TV's A Midsummer Night's Dream. To those who have asked if she'll be back on The Avengers, the answer is nay. She couldn't come back to that program if she wanted to, since the show has been cancelled. Viewers can see her in reruns, however.

CBS News will cover the investiture of the Prince of Wales on Tuesday, July 1 with a live broadcast via satellite from 8 to 11:30 a.m. on W-TEN-TV. A special report, with highlights of the investiture, will be broadcast on the evening of July 1 from 10:30-11 p.m.

RANDOM THOUGHTS ON RECENT VIEWING:

The Jimmie Rodgers Show, new summer series replacing Carol Burnett, is far from ponderous. The star of the series has an easy-going charm and warmth, and the overall atmosphere of the show is a sophisticated country and western aura.

Frank Gorshin was excellent, as always, doing his impressions of great stars, on this week's Kraft Music Hall. And Norman Wisdom was slightly wonderful singing, acting and dancing to the title song of the musical, "Walking Happy."

HO-HUM, IT'S REPEATS, REPEATS AND MORE REPEATS IN THE WEEK AHEAD, BUT SOME BEST BETS MIGHT INCLUDE:

Today, Sat., June 21

WIDE WORLD OF SPORTS (ABC, 5 p.m.). The 48th Annual N.C.A.A. Outdoor Track and Field Championships from Knoxville, Tenn., with virtually all major collegiate athletes in these events, competing. A second feature is a special preview of the June 23 Heavyweight Championship fight between Joe Frazier and Jerry Quarry.

SATURDAY MOVIES (NBC, 9 p.m.). A rerun called "Fear No Evil" and great for fans of the supernatural. Starring Louis Jourdan, Lynda Day, Bradford Dillman, Marsha Hunt and a haunted mirror, it's about an attorney and his wife who buy a grotesque antique mirror and, after he's killed in an auto accident, she finds she can communicate with his spirit through the looking glass.

JOHNNY CASH SHOW (ABC, 9:30 p.m.). Guest Eddie Albert sings, dances and plays guitar. Cash's feature of the evening is his new recording, Wanted Man, done in song and dialogue and co-authored by Bob Dylan.

Sunday, June 22

MEET THE PRESS (NBC, 1 p.m.). New York's personable, beleaguered and just defeated in the Primary mayor, John Lindsay, in a live interview from Fun City.

ISSUES AND ANSWERS (ABC, 1:30 p.m.). Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., an outspoken foe of Nixon's policies in Southeast Asia, is the guest.

NFL ACTION (CBS, 4:30 p.m.). A well-done study of the history of the National Football League with the focus on dynamic George Halas and his Chicago Bears and the legendary Red Grange, football's Galloping Ghost.

SOUNDS OF SUMMER (CHANNELS 13 & 17, 8 p.m.). Joan Kennedy, wife of Sen. Edward Kennedy, narrates Prokofiev's "Peter and the Wolf," and Cyril Ritchard narrates Peter Menin's cantata.

"The Pied Piper of Hamelin" as part of the 'Boston Pops' Old Timers' Night, conducted by Arthur Fiedler.

Monday, June 23

BILL COSBY SPECIAL (NBC, p.m.). Old Silverthroat hosts this "Children's Theatre" presentation of films made by youngsters and 17 kids from 6 to 12 show Cos the way they saw the world through their cameras.

MONDAY MOVIE (NBC, 9 p.m.). Rerun of "Companions in Nightmare," award-winning psychological thriller about murder in a group-therapy session, starring Melvyn Douglas, Gig Young, Anne Baxter, Patrick O'Neill.

BLACK JOURNAL (Channels 13 & 17, 9 p.m.). First anniversary show featuring best segments shown over past year, including: prison interview with Huey Newton, the success of a black Louisiana farm cooperative, the dilemma of the black policeman, a choreographed exercise in karate, and others.

Tuesday, June 24

FIDEL CASTRO (Channel 13, 7 p.m.). Two-hour special profiling Fidel and filmed in Cuba by jeep and helicopter.

WORLD OF BOSSA NOVA (Channel 17, 8 p.m.). Cameras move from the beaches to the plains of Brazil to look at the rapidly changing music scene in that country.

WEDNESDAY MOVIE (NBC, 9 p.m.). "The Jokers" is rerun and, make no mistake, it's one of the finest, funniest British suspense-comedies ever made. A mod-satire about filching the Crown Jewels from the Tower of London.

CHRONICLE (Channel 13, 9 p.m.). "No Gun Towers, No Fences" takes viewers on a visit to the Robert F. Kennedy youth center in W. Va., where 16-20 year-old Federal offenders attend classes and hold a "town meeting."

60 MINUTES (CBS, 10 p.m.).

Mike Wallace and Harry Reasoner go to Yugoslavia to interview Tito and see the Yugoslav production of "Hair," and to Venice to examine a city literally sinking into the sea.

Wednesday, June 25

DRAMA SPECIAL (ABC, 9 p.m.). A rerun of the well-received TV adaptation of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," starring Jack Palance as J&H.

Thursday, June 26

THE PRISONER (CBS, 8 p.m.). Patrick McGouhan is introduced to himself by his captors in "The Schizoid Man," a chilling sequence in this series.

MAMA CASS (ABC, 9 p.m.). Hour special starring Mama Cass Elliot of the Mamas and the Papas, with guests Buddy Hackett, Martin Landau, Barbara Bain, Mary Travers of Peter, Paul & Mary, Joni Mitchell.

Friday, June 27

NET PLAYHOUSE (Channels 13 & 17, 8:30 p.m.). Dramatization of the last years of English composer Frederick Delius, blind and paralyzed, but still relentlessly intent on creating musical history.

FRIDAY MOVIE (CBS, 9 p.m.). "Guns of Batasi," well done story of a dedicated British soldier facing the complexities of modern Africa. The most talented Richard Attenborough is excellent as the central character. (COMPILED BY T. GEERTSEMA)
